aughter no stranger to this place

Solemn and dignified are not the best adjectives to use to describe student life at MHS. Cheerful and funloving would more aptly tell the story. Although MHS kids can get as serious as anyone when they want to, they would much rather face school days and school events with smiles, laughter, and a healthy dose of craziness. Life at school is just so much more fun when you can loosen up and love every minute of it.

ressing up always in at school

Give MHS students the slightest excuse to masquerade as someone a little more flamboyant than their normal selves, and watch out.

Initiations, floats, parties, and special theme days at school all provide occasions to come up with wild and colorful costumes.

An FHA "Duo party" was attended by couples ranging from mustard and ketchup to Peter Pan and Tinkerbell. And FFA initiation is always a favorite day, for everyone except the boys who come to school dressed as girls.

Look around on Punk Day, or Dress Up Day, or Cowboy Day and you can tell that MHS students are loving every minute of it.

Like the basketball Lions did last year, the MHS Sweethearts captured the attention of the crowd at the 2A State Basketball Tournament. The pom pon group was invited to perform after requesting permission from state officials. At Hammons Center in Springfield, the girls performed the routine they had previously done at Homecoming. The routine included the "worm", a fall, line kicks, a running pom pon pass, and ripples. The large audience frequently interrupted the performance with loud applause, and it was obvious that they, and the girls, were loving every one of the six minutes.

Launa Matlock, Susan Zorsch, Kim Price, and Serena Quessenberry kick and circle their way around Hammons Center.

etting involved means fun

Kids that only attend classes don't know what they are missing.

Getting involved in clubs, sports, and class activities makes high school more than just a place you have to go five days a week.

It's hard to believe that kids would run three and a half miles in the rain, or spend a Saturday picking up walnuts, or hang miles of crepe paper streamers, if they weren't loving every minute of it.

Following the crowning, Homecoming Queen Lisa Johnson is congratulated by Glenda Biesenmeyer.

ome of the best times at MHS happen when students get together for ceremonies, parties, or games. Events like Homecoming and Junior Olympics are anticipated, enjoyed, and remembered. For students involved in clubs and activities, the school year can pass quickly in a blur of concerts, carnivals, dances, cookouts, and contests. Lovin' every minute of it may be an understatement for many active MHS students.

The milestone of winning every home game was accomplished under first year head coach Roger Wood and first year assistant coach

"The girls had a very successful year," Wood said. "They worked very hard."

Shavon Campbell, a sophomore transfer from Houston, led the squad in scoring with 134 points. Senior Hedrick was the team's leading spiker. Seniors Kim Price and Becky Dennis were offside spikers, and senior Coleena Anderson and junior Rona Baker were the teams setters. Senior Mary Helsey was top

The girls on the team saw a reason for all their hard work.

"I think we had a great year. This season was a lot of hard work, but wouldn't have missed it for anything," Campbell said. "It taught me that no matter what the final score is, you can always come out a winner.'

Two games that went into the third set against Seymour were the closest matches of the year, with Seymour winning the first and the Lady Lions winning the second.

Team members were enthusiastic about this year's success.

'We were close as a team," Dennis said, "And I think that made our playing better."

"I really enjoyed this season." Baker said, "because we reached a lot of the goals we were striving for."

A fourth place in the Norwood Tournament and qualifying for regionals were two more achievements by the team this season.

Crawling gets runner to state meet

"Lynette showed a lot of self-pride. The fact that she had to crawl about six or seven feet to finish proves it. It was gutsy." Max Greene

Falling leaves and a steady drizzle don't keep Brod Detherage from finishing his cross country run at Mansfield.

It was a Cinderella story from beginning to end.

Who would believe that the girl who began the cross country season as team manager would find herself running in the state meet a few months later.

After Coach Randy Short took the clipboard out of her hands and got her started running the 3.2 mile cross country course, senior Lynette Top had a successful year against area competition. However, her real test came at the district meet at Lake Springfield on a bitterly cold November morning.

"After the first lap I felt real tired in a different way than I had ever felt running before," Top said. "But I kept on running and my legs felt real numb. Over the last hill to the finish line I tried to sprint, but my legs weren't moving. I felt I was getting shorter and that I was running in slow motion."

Collapsing within six feet of the finish line, Top crawled the remaining distance and collapsed again, unable to move. Determined, she had finished number fifteen and qualified for state.

Top's sister Rhonda and former cross country coach Max Greene carried Top away from the finish line. They dressed her in warm clothing, then her brother John carried her to the bus where it took 30 minutues for her to revive.

"Lynette showed a lot of selfpride," Greene said. "The fact that she had to crawl about six or seven feet to finish proves it. It was gutsy."

Top placed 79 out of 144 runners at state, with a time of 24:06. She was the first girl from MHS to compete in a state event.

Other cross country team members had good years. Top finishers at most of the meets were John Farmer, John Top, Gary Davis, Tommy Keith, Kenny Garrison, and Brad Detherage. Sisters Claire and Becky Brennan usually were top contenders.

A track team member placed high at districts, enabling him to compete at the state meet in May.

Senior Mike Cantrell placed ninth in the state in the shotput division. He also collected several first place wins at local meets.

Winning season eludes team

"Despite having a losing season, I had a great time. There's no telling how much I'll like it next year if we win." Joe Freeman

After years of conference championships, district titles, and even a state runner-up title, a 7-16 record doesn't seem up to par for the baseball team.

But depite the record, the experience gained by a team without a single senior definitely leaves something to look forward to.

"Despite having a losing season, I had a great time," junior infielder Joe Freeman said. "There's no telling how much I'll like it next year if we win."

Junior Steve Bruce led the team with a .313 batting average, with made the All-Conference first sophomore Kirby Skyles close behind with .303.

Junior Brent Evans won the most valuable player award, and also earned the lowest strike-out award with only 7 strike-outs in 80 atbats.

Freshman Bart Evans was leading pitcher for the Lions. He threw 26 innings, allowing 20 hits, walking 27, and striking out 24.

Lady Lions gain new team

For the first time in several years, the interest was there.

After struggling along with only enough girls for a varsity team, this year there were enough girls to add a junior varsity team.

According to the team members, Coach Randy Short, a former boys basketball coach at MHS, was largely responsible for the renewed interest in the team.

Although the girls only bettered their record by one win, they were optimistic about the year's results.

"I think we had a pretty good year," senior Lynette Top said. "It is obvious that the girls basketball program is improving."

Learning the fundamentals and being able to get the ball in the hole were just a few of the goals Coach Short set for the girls.

"I really think people saw a different style of girls basketball," he said. "I expected the girls to be ladies on the court, but also to play like boys."

The teams were composed of four seniors and one junior, with the rest being underclassmen.

"I thought we had a good year," freshman Julie Perry said, "for having a junior varsity team for the first time in a couple of years."

Sisters Becky Brennan and Claire Brennan were both named to the All-Conference teams. "I really think people saw a different style of girls basket-ball. I expected the girls to be ladies on the court, but also to play like boys."

Injuries plague basketball team

"I was afraid to go out and practice. We just had a string of bad luck that you would not believe. At one time, five of my first nine players were hurt." Coach Jim Nichols Two casts, an eye patch, and yards of tape bandages were as much a part of the team uniform as jerseys and warm-ups for the varsity basketball team.

A knee operation, two broken bones, and at least five sprained ankles delivered the team a year of adversity.

Junior guard Joe Freeman watched the first game of the season from the sidelines, after spending time on crutches.

"It was very disappointing," he said, "to practice all that time and then to hurt my ankle the day before the first game."

"I'll tell you something," Coach Jim Nichols said, "I was afraid to go out and practice. We just had a string of bad luck that you would not believe. At one time, five of my first nine players were hurt."

Starting guard Brett Dennis suffered an eye injury late in the season, had to wear a patch for several days, but made it back in the line-up for the last home game.

"It hurt really bad," Dennis said.
"I was just glad I got to play in the next game."

However, with all the injuries, the Lions still pulled it together for a 20-7 record which included the Seymour Tournament championship and second in the Mansfield Tourney. This was the fourth year out of five that the varsity Lions reached the 20-win plateau under Coach Nichols.

The team was led by four players whose scoring averaged in double figures.

Zorsch averaged 15.6 points per game, closely followed by returning starter Shannon Watterson with 14.3. Junior starter Brent Evans scored the most overall points, 376, for a 13.9 average, and Dennis averaged 12.7.

Dennis was leading rebounder for the team, averaging 10.6 per game. His 97 offensive rebounds added up to more than twice as many as any of his teammates.

Watterson led in free throw accuracy, hitting 63 percent, while Zorsch led in the field goal shooting with 58 percent.

The Lions averaged 66.3 points per game, while holding their opponents to 55.1. The MHS squad shot 49 percent from the field.

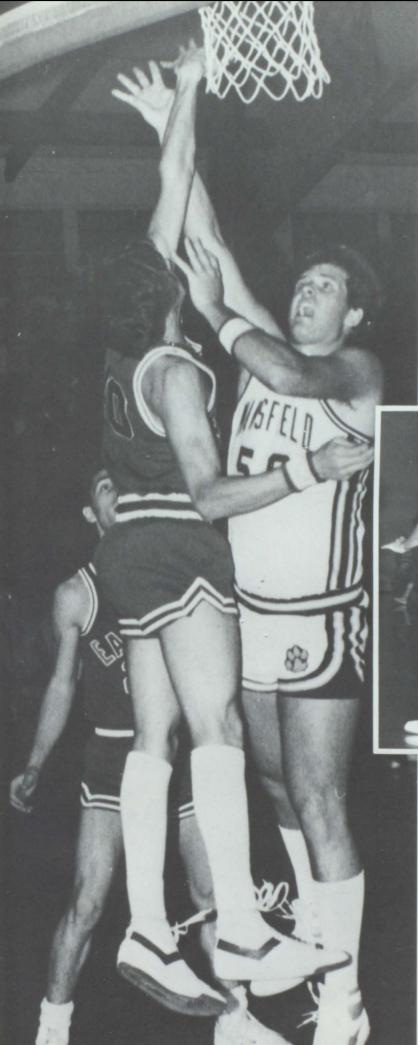

Watterson, Zorsch, Dennis, and Evans made the All-Conference team.

It finally happened.

For the first time in three years, the junior high girls basketball team recorded a win.

And after that first win, the girls went on to compile a 4-7 record. Although that is a losing record, it is impressive when you consider the fact that the airls team has only been in existence for four years, and had only won one game before this season.

Team members were excited about the win that broke the threeyear drought.

"I'm really glad we broke the losing streak," Jeanne Bryan said. "It was around for too long."

It was an emotional game for the junior high girls.

"It was great at the end," Stephanie Duncan said. "Everyone was jumping around and some were even crying."

The girls got their victories from Fordland, Hartville, and Seymour.

"Although it is great to win," Coach Roger Wood said, "the purpose is to teach the athletes the fundamentals and prepare them for high school basketball."

After losing the first game of the season to Conway, the eighth grade boys basketball team took revenge on everyone. They lost only one other game, ending the season with a 12-2 record.

Since both losses were to Conway, beating them 34-31 at the last home game of the year and handing them their only loss was sweet revenge.

"The highlight of the season was defeating Conway," Coach Duane Widhalm said.

The eighth graders were sorry to see a winning season come to a

"I hated to see it end, "Gary Greene said. "We were just starting to play good as a team when the season ended."

Although the seventh grade boys had a losing season of 4-5, Coach Widhalm emphasized that winning isn't everything.

"We had hard work and dedication." he said. "which means more than the wins."

Team members were pleased with their first year of junior high

"We didn't do too good at first," Marc Brazeal said, "but at the last of the season we beat two teams that had beaten us before. I think we can have a winning season next year."

As the graduates walked two by two out of the gymnasium, they knew another chapter in their lives was closed.

The 1986 class celebrated their graduation in two ceremonies. Baccalaureate services were on Sunday, May 18, and Commencement was the following Monday

Rev. Dick Bishop of the Mansfield First Baptist Church delivered the message during Baccalaureate

There were two songs during Baccalaureate services. "Sabbath Prayer" by a group of senior girls, and "It's Time To Fly Away", by the Senior Chorus. Sarah Cox read a poem.

Jerry Ragsdale began the Commencement exercises with the invocation. Triplets Lance, Lori, and Lisa Johnson gave the welcome, which was followed by speeches by Valedictorian Lynette Top and Salutatorian Jerry Ragsdale.

Other honor students were Brenda Miller, Arian Dasmalchi, Missy Holper, and Mary Helsley.

"Receiving an honor cord was really something special," Brenda Miller said.

Recognition of honor graduates was conducted by the senior class sponsors, Mrs. Jean Steinhauer and Mrs. Judy Middleton, followed by principal Gene Garrison with recognition of scholarship winners.

There were three songs during Commencement: "All I Can Be" by the Senior Chorus, "The Greatest Love of All" by Lisa Johnson, and "Friends" by the Senior Chorus.

The presentation of diplomas was done by Superintendent of Schools Robert Perry and Board President Dale Keith. The singing of the school song followed.

Lisa Johnson closed the ceremony with the benediction.

Motto for the class was "Remember yesterday, dream of tomorrow, but live for today.

The class flower was the red rose, and the class colors were maroon and white.

Earning funds no breeze

It's a year that eats up money like no other year.

The senior trip and graduation are traditional money-guzzlers, and the seniors know they need to earn big bucks to finance those two special events

Beginning early in the year, the class earned money in a variety of ways, including operating a booth at the CTA Carnival and a concession stand at home basketball games. They also built a float to enter in the town's Christmas parade.

Using strings of popcorn, Becky Dennis and Theresa Keith trim the Christmas float.

At the CTA Carnival, Connie Adamson, Lance Johnson, and Kristie Dering handle the cotton candy booth for the seniors.

Seniors' skill put to test

Unlike the old saying, it was the fourth time that was the charm for the Class of '86.

In the eighth annual Junior Olympics, the seniors pushed themselves to the limit, edging past the juniors by one point to claim the victory.

The contest wasn't decided until the final event, the tug of war, and although the juniors won, the seniors still got enough points to win the Olympics.

In every event from leapfrog to the obstacle course, the seniors showed a determination to win the "battle of the classes."

With Miles Matlock securely under their control, Brenda Miller, Missy Lair, Lynette Top, and Becky Dennis run the body race.

The seniors pull together to beat the sophomores in the first round of the tug of war.

They get satisfaction from collecting awards and winning contests, individually and as groups. And sometimes, if it's a subject that interests them, they really do love those minutes they spend learning.

Art students repeat contest title victory

The second time around didn't make the victory any less sweet.

Mansfield students received a total of 84 points to earn the Sweepstakes Award in the annual Alpha Rho Tau Art Fair.

Outscoring 13 other schools to claim the championship, it was a repeat win for MHS.

Senior Missy Holper was named "Top Individual Student" by finishing first in perspective, pastel, water color, pencil still life, and pencil portraits. She also had three seconds in pastel, pencil still life, and color design; a third in calligraphy; an honorable mention in pencil portraits.

"it has been great to have an artist like that around," art teacher Mrs. Judy Middleton said. "She has been an inspiration to my art classes, and I feel confident I'll see her name in a wellknown gallery someday."

Others under the direction of Mrs. Middleton placed as follows: metal sculpture, Kevin Clouse first place, Randal Fuge second place; perspective, Deana Moyers second place; posters, Serena Quessenberry honorable mention; wood sculpture, April Light honorable mention; cartoon, Shaun Moore honorable mention; fashion, Melinda Keeling first place and fourth place; prints, Shaun Moore fourth place.

Miscellaneous sculpture, Shaun Moore fourth place; crayon, Michelle Morris second place; pastel, Holly Clark third place; design base relief, Lawanda Young second place; mixed media, Melinda Keeling second place; commercial design, Darin Raney and Nova McClain second place

In addition to traditional art classes, Mrs. Middleton taught a photography class, and was again a Senior Class sponsor.

Mrs. Wanda McGhee taught junior high and elementary art classes.

Eric Spyres, high school and junior high music teacher, entered several musicians and vocalists in district and state competition, directed several concerts, and continued to provide marching entertainment at area parades. Mr. Spyres was the Student Council sponsor.

Mrs. Debbie Dale taught elementary and junior high music. She also accompanied several students at music contest.

VOCATIONAL ARTS

Shop student captures 'Best in Show' prize

Fifty-five one ratings for MHS students gave them a tie for top spot at the Summit Conference Industrial Arts Fair. In addition, projects by a junior girl and a senior girl won "Best in Show" and "Best in Drafting" honors.

Devonna Sickels' coffee table and matching end tables beat out dozens of entries to gain "Best in Show" honors, and Melissa Holper won "Best in Drafting."

Bill Ghan's students also earned 20 twos and 7 threes. Projects making ones were eligible for the SMSU District Contest, where MHS students scored 8 one ratings. They included projects by Monty McConnell, Terry Welker, Shane Potts, David Severs, Scott Storms, John Ragsdale, Devonna Sickels, and the 7A junior high class.

General shop students made the halls echo with the sound of music after they built 9-transistor radios.

"Making a 9-transistor radio that works as good as any you have at home," Mr. Ghan said, "must be a really good feeling for anyone."

His students also built one-twelfth scale model houses, exact in detail through the framing stage.

Mr. Ghan was sponsor for the Freshman Class.

Business students organized under the leadership of Mrs. Jean Steinhauer to form a Future Business Leaders of America chapter.

At the annual Summit Conference Business Contest, Missy Lair won a second place red ribbon in Typing II, and Susan Huffman won second place in Typing I.

In addition to organizing FBLA, Mrs. Steinhauer was cheerleader and Senior Class sponsor.

Home economics students tried a multitude of projects ranging from decorating cakes to sewing to planning weddings and receptions. Teacher Mrs. Kathy Barnett emphasized that "home ec" classes are no longer just girl stuff.

"I try to encourage young people to take home economics classes," she said, "because no matter what their plans are after high school, they will need these basic skills."

Mrs. Barnett served as sponsor for Future Homemakers of America.

Future Farmers of America advisor Gene Cravens took his agriculture classes on numerous field trips. His group assisted in several community projects, including clean-up at the new Little League ballpark.

"Physical education is good for high school students," he said, "because it teaches them sportsmanship, discipline, and gives kids a feeling of satisfaction."

Mr. Short was also track and cross country coach, and spent the main part of the day as elementary and junior high physical education teacher.

Athletic Director Jim Nichols taught drivers education classes and a study hall in addition to coaching duties.

Mr. Nichols was head basketball and baseball coach for high school boys. Athletic director duties included scheduling games and officials for sports.

Duane Widhalm was junior high boys basketball coach and assistant coach for high school basketball and baseball. He also taught elementary and junior high physical education classes.

Junior high girls basketball and high school softball was coached by Roger Wood, who was also a history teacher.

The coaches operated "pee-wee" programs for elementary age basketball players.

As before, physical education students were allowed to spend time at the municipal pool when the temperature was hot at the beginning of school. This included elementary as well as high school and junior high students.

LANGUAGE ARTS

Department grows with new subjects and clubs

Can you spell sesquipedalian?

If you can't, you might want to ask sophomore Claire Brennan or freshman Wanda Williams, since they both won blue ribbons in the spelling division at the Summit Conference English Contest.

But they weren't the only winners. Senior Brenda Miller and junior Kenny Lindsey both brought home white ribbons in language mechanics, as did sophomore Romin Dasmalchi in composition.

In addition to these winners, senior Arian Dasmalchi and sophomore Susan Zorsch took third place in vocabulary and language mechanics, respectively.

Mrs. Gayle Stenson accompanied the group to the contest. She taught English I, III, and IV, as well as an American History class. This was her first year of teaching.

It was a big year for journalism students at Mansfield

In the Ozark Publications Advisers write-off contest at Evangel College, Mansfield tied for second place with Springfield Glendale and Mt. Vernon.

At the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association contest at the University of Missouri, staff members won 22 state awards, captured the state yearbook sweepstakes title and the state newspaper sweepstakes title, and had both publications named All-Missouri.

Journalism adviser Mrs. Debbie Arnall was one of ten nominees for Journalism Teacher of the Year. She taught English II and American History in addition to School Publications I and II. She was Junior Class sponsor and adviser for the newspaper and yearbook.

Mrs. Arnall praised the publications staff for their accomplishments.

"We had the biggest publication staff in years, and it was by far the most talented group I have ever worked with", she said. "They cleaned up at state and we sang along to 'Lovin' Every Minute of It' on the way home from Columbia."

This was the first year that Mansfield had a Speech and Debate Club. The club, which was formed by Miss Debbie Clevenger, participated in three speech contests this past year.

"I am very happy with the group," she said. "I think we did very well, considering it was our first year."

Miss Clevenger was junior high language arts teacher, and also taught English I. She was seventh grade and junior high cheerleader sponsor.

Mrs. Kay Goss, who left the language arts department two years ago to work in the library, recently completed her certification in the library sciences. She was sponsor of the Junior Class and the pompon girls.

Mrs. Vicki Blankenship joined the Mansfield staff as part-time French instructor, then took over as junior high math teacher in the spring. She sponsored French Club.

SOCIAL STUDIES

History students urged to help teach class

From the back row of the classroom, teaching may look easy. But when you are standing in the front of the room, easy evaporates.

To help students learn the difficulty in teaching, Roger Wood, high school social studies teacher, required each student to teach class for one day. The students worked in groups of two or three, and could teach the class however they desired. The assignment was worth 100 points of their quarterly grade.

His world history classes also spent a couple of weeks studying Russian history and watching the movie "Peter the Great."

In addition to teaching world history, American History, sociology, and psychology, Mr. Wood coached softball, volleyball, and junior high and high school girls basketball.

Mrs. Debbie Arnall, who taught American History, tried a different method of teaching.

"We tried to supplement our textbooks," Mrs. Arnall said, "with material that brought the subject to life. Several television mini-series and movies were right out of the history books, so we took advantage of the school's VCR. The classes really enjoyed 'The Blue and the Gray' and 'Enola Gay: The Men and the Mission'."

Mrs. Arnall also was part of the language arts department, and was the newspaper, yearbook, and Junior Class sponsor.

Jeff Dill, who taught junior high social studies, high school government and geography, also helped coach volleyball and soft-ball

SCIENCE/MATH

Math students keep traveling trophy at MHS

The traveling trophy didn't travel very far.

MHS students took the traveling trophy for the second year in a row at the Summit Conference Math Fair held at Conway High School.

With 56 points, Mansfield was far ahead of the four other schools. Fordland accumulated 30 points, Hartville 22 1/2, Conway 17 1/2, and Seymour 0.

Math Club sponsor Morgan Dale was pleased with the contest results.

"Winning the trophy was great," Mr. Dale said. "The kids worked very hard. The testing was unusual because everyone in all the divisions took the same test, but we still won by a large margin."

Three MHS students were first in their divisions. Susan Zorsch took top honors in geometry, Kenny Lindsey in Algebra II, and Missy Holper in trigonometry.

Kevin Lindsey placed second in Algebra I. Third place ribbons were taken by Michelle Morris in basic math, Mary Helsley in Algebra II, and Jerry Ragsdale in trigonometry.

Lynette Top took fourth in trigonometry and Shauna Thieman and Melissa Helsely got honorable mention in Algebra I.

Math classes were taught by high school teacher Morgan Dale and junior high instructor Floyce Maxwell. French teacher Mrs. Vicki Blankenship took over the junior high classes when Mr. Maxwell resigned in early spring. Mrs. Blankenship helped sponsor the seventh grade.

Under the leadership of high school science teacher Randy Sarver, MHS students took two division titles at the University of Missouri-Rolla Science Fair.

Out of fourteen projects sent to the fair, Mansfield had six place in the top three of their divisions.

Taking first place in their divisions were Jacqueline Batcheller in biochemistry and Arian Dasmalchi in microbiology.

Taking seconds were Darin Raney in microbiology, Brett Neal in physics, and Susan Zorsch and Claire Brennan in zoology.

Mr. Sarver was the sponsor of Science Club, which required members to enter projects in area fairs.

Junior high science classes were taught by Max Greene who also taught conservation for high school students. Conservation covered subjects such as air pollution, water pollution, wild animals, fish, forestry, hunter education, and the geography of Missouri.

ADMINISTRATION

Superintendent Perry at MHS for eight years

Superintendent of Schools Robert Perry has completed his eighth year in the Mansfield R-IV school system. His first two years were spent as the high school principal, and the last six years as superintendent.

Gene Garrison, principal of the junior and senior high school, marked his sixth year, and David Brouse was principal of Laura Ingalls Wilder Elementary for his first year.

Mr. Garrison praised students and faculty for their high involvement in school activities.

"The extra time and hard work that go into the activities take a lot of dedication on the students, coaches, and sponsors part," he said. "Nature forces an individual to reach down into themselves to achieve."

Merlin Miller was special program coordinator for the third year.

Mrs. Ruby Johns marked her twenty-second year with the school system. She spent eight years as the elementary secretary and the past fourteen as the secretary to the superintendent and school bookkeeper.

Cleo Chambers spent three years as elementary secretary and has now completed fifteen years as the high school secretary and receptionist.

Mrs. Debbie Letsinger was elementary secretary for her fifth year. She was junior high secretary for three years before moving to the elementary.

For the fourth year, Mrs. Lana Kirkland was secretary to the special programs coordinator. She was also in charge of keeping lunch records.

The Mansfield Board of Education president was Dale Keith.

SPECIAL TEACHERS

School provides classes for special students

A wide range of teachers whose duties are to provide more specialized training are available at Mansfield, in addition to regular classroom teachers.

Mrs. Okema Haden, the junior and senior high school counselor, has a variety of responsibilities. Her main duties were serving as test coordinator and consultant to students for class selection and college preparation.

"I assist in helping students make decisions for their future goals and personal relationships," Mrs. Haden said. "An important part of my job is providing a friendly ear when they need to talk."

Four teachers were involved in remedial instructions to help students keep up with their class if they lagged behind. Mrs. Helen Lawrence taught remedial reading, Miss Linda Graham taught remedial language arts, Dallas Chambers taught remedial math, and Miss Lori Johnson was speech therapist.

Three teachers at the regular campus also provided instruction for students who needed special attention.

Mrs. Dorothy Wallace was responsible for elementary learning disabilities, Miss Jeanette Sparks taught elementary EMH, and Miss Stephaney Wright was the instructor for junior and senior high school EMR and learning disabilities students.

Miss Wright entered several of her students in the Special Olympics bowling tournament at Springfield.

"Special Olympics events allow the students to participate in a sport with other people of the same age group and ability levels," she said. "It's a good experience for everyone. There are no losers."

The special education trailers were moved at the beginning of the school year from the downtown area, closer to the regular campus for the convenience of special education students from Mansfield and surrounding towns. The name was changed following the move, and the portable building were permanently established as the "Annex."

Teachers at the Annex and their subjects were Mrs. Mary Bakey, orthopedically handicapped, Mrs. Cindy Breid-Baker, hearing impaired, and Miss Vickie Johnston, behavior disorder.

"Special Olympic events allow the students to participate in a sport with other people of the same age group and ability levels. It's a good experience for everyone. There are no losers."

SUPPORT STAFF

New librarian tries own approach

The year began for Mrs. Becky Moody with the difficult task of filling Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell's shoes.

Mrs. Mitchell, who retired last year, had long worked with kids and teachers at Mansfield, which made it a little more difficult for Mrs. Moody to take over as elementary librarian.

"I felt like I would have to do things in my own way," she said, "because there will never be another Mrs. Mitchell. Hopefully, the children will come to like me and respect me as they did Mrs. Mitchell."

Mrs. Moody received a great deal of pleasure from seeing kids excited about reading.

"The thing I like most about my job," she said, "is when a student brings back a book and is anxious to check out another one."

School nurse Mrs. Janet Brooke also found fulfillment from working with younger children.

"Somedays it's a challenge," she said, "but when one of the kids acts appreciative for something I've done, it makes it all worthwhile."

The lunchroom workers tried to add variety to the menu, and they continued with the salad bar open to junior high and high school students. They also provided free Thanksgiving and Christmas lunches to all students and staff.

Five aides worked for the school system. Elementary aides were Mrs. Helen Euler, Mrs. Patty Hanger, and Mrs. Laurel Hall. Special education aides were Mrs. Janice McNeil and Mrs. Melanie Light.

"The thing I like most about my job is when a student brings back a book and is anxious to check out another one." Becky Moody class to juniors' daily routine

hether it be a shrine to a loved one, a favorite cartoon character, or a rock group, juniors found locker art an essential part of high school life.

Uniquely decorated, each locker offered a little lift to routine days.

Brad Detherage had the only locker dedicated to a girlfriend. He used pictures of her high school achievements in pom pon and volleyball to make his day cheerier.

It's nice to open my locker," Detherage said, "and have Kelly's smile brighten my day."

Several girls plastered lockers with pictures and memorabilia of their boyfriends.

Susan Huffman arranged photos of her boyfriend, Jackie McCleary, on contact paper background. She filled in the spaces with Care Bear Stickers.

Serena Quessenberry sported a "Rock Hall of Fame" including posters of Iron Maiden and Night Ranger.

"At least I see something nice," Quessenberry said, "and I don't have to look at or think about reachers all day."

Craig Carter took a more relaxed approach to locker art. He gave the privilege to his girlfriend, Shavon Campbell.

Jacqueline Batcheller papered her locker with red and white Ziggy paper before converting it into a "Donnie Dennis Museum." The locker contained photos of Dennis, arranged to leave room for his name, which was spelled out down the door in huge red letters.

Sophomores find braces can be challenging

As you walk down the halls of MHS you might notice a "sparking smile" or "tin grin" from passing students.

The sparkle and the tin signal braces, those expensive possessions that are not a fun experience for most of their owners.

Braces, as everyone knows, are used to straighten teeth and correct overbites and other misalignments.

According to local dentist Dr. Rick Grubbs, who refers his patients who need braces to an orthodontist, the average time length of wearing braces is about twenty-four months.

Shalene Simpson has worn braces for one year and three months. She is looking forward to the time when she gets them taken off.

Lots of fun eating habits become forbidden when braces are put on. Crunchy, sticky, or gooey foods can't be eaten. This means no popcorn, caramel, or peanuts.

Simpson already knows the forbidden food that will be on her list in seven months from now.

"The first thing I'm going to eat," she said, "is corn chips."

Holly Clark has worn braces for two years and hopes to get them taken off soon. She says she doesn't miss any of her favorite foods because she eats what she isn't supposed to eat.

She has learned to live with braces, but still has silly times.

"It is embarrassing," she said, "when you try and say something fast and spit on everybody."

Ninth graders collect year of memories t's time to grow up.

Most freshmen feel that their first year of high school is a time of accepting responsibility, and all the privileges that go along with it.

Now that the class of '89 has made it through what is undoubtedly the most difficult year of high school, what memories will stand out most in their minds about that first year?

"I will always remember my first day in high school," Rhonda Fuge said, "because we finally got some privileges, like open lunch hour."

Initiation was on the minds of many freshmen.

"I hated being initiated." Rusty Carter said, "but when I get older it will be a lot of fun to do it to other people."

Homecoming is another event that many freshmen will always remember.

Tassie Baker felt that Homecoming was the best part of her freshman year. and Larry Livingston remembered Rock 99 D.J. Cedric Randall providing music for the Homecoming dance.

Some freshmen will remember high school as an opportunity to make new friends.

"I liked getting to know all the older high school kids," Mary Cantrell said, "It was really fun."

"I'll always remember getting to run around with all the juniors while I was a freshman." Heather Hensy said.

Shauna Thieman said that being class president will be one of her favorite memories.

"It gave me an opportunity to get to know all my classmates better," she said, "and it gave me a chance to meet more people."

Eighth graders enjoy free time after school fter the school bell rings, the eighth graders show a wide variety of out of school interests.

Watching felevision is how Susan Jones likes to spend her spare time. Her favorite show was "Silver Spoons." Ricky Schroeder is really cute, she said.

Heather Krider revealed that talking to her friends on the phone was a favorite past time. Boys and homework were some of her favorite topics.

Chasing girls was Matr Calhoun's hobby.

"I try to practice my hobby everyday," Matt said.

Many students showed an interest in outdoor activities. They seemed to enjoy the freedom of being outside. Their activities ranged from a relaxing fishing trip to a wild motorcyle ride.

Deana Kelly enjoyed riding her quarter horses on her father's farm.

Playing basketball was a relaxing escape for Gary Greene. He played for nealy an hour each day after school.

Jon Batcheller enjoyed hunting deer and turkey near his home on U Highway.

"Being out in the woods," Batcheller said, "is very enjoyable."

Marty Henry enjoyed fishing whenever the weather was warm enough.

"I try to go fishing every chance I get," Henry said.

Robert Johnson enjoyed riding motorcycles at his grandfather's home.

Seventh grade admires many famous people hile sitting in a junior high classroom and trying, but failing, to pay attention, some seventh grade students are dreaming about famous people.

Many of the entertainment and sports figures are idolized because of their looks.

"I admire Rob Lowe," Shelli Detherage said, "because he is absolutely gorgeous."

"Don Johnson is really something," Angie Miller said. "He looks good unshaven and he wears no socks."

Carla Swopes and Kristy Burnett both like Michael J. Fox: Burnett because she thinks he so cute, and Swopes because she thinks he is a good actor.

Another group of seventh graders admire people for their athletic abiblity

"Spudd Webb is great," Christi Evans said. "He is five foot seven inches tall and can dunk it."

Rachelle Lansdown looks up to Kansas City Royal George Brett because he is good at baseball, but St. Louis Cardinal Ozzie Smith fascinates Marc Brazeal.

"I watch him a lot," he said, "He is my idol."

Lots of other celebrities made the list of most admired famous people.

Billy Stofer thinks Mr.T is great because he has lots of gold, and Vickie Franks admires Bill Cosby because he is so funny.

"I think Sylvester Stallone is great," Mike Young said. "No one could play Rocky like he did."

Sylvia is someone Diane Lansdown thinks is special.

Sixth graders egg drop proves smashing ozens of odd - shaped containers, ranging from styrofoam cartons to cardboard boxes, and several dozen eggs kept the sixth arade occupied.

As a class project, the students carefully planned the egg - vessels to survive the drop from atop the elementary playground slide. Due to rain, they were forced to use a twelve - foot ladder in the multi - purpose room.

Tying in with their science studies, Project Egg drop proved to be a big success.

Chris Dunn was relieved that his egg hadn't broken in a cottage cheese container with styrofoam packing.

"My container was a piece of garbage," Kerrick Lindsey said, "but my egg didn't break."

Half a trash bag was successfully used as a parachute by Pat Williams to protect his newspaper - wrapped egg.

Tommy Kingery's egg made an easy landing in a cardboard box covered with play money.

Barry Short took every precaution to keep his egg unbroken.

"I used a parachute and wings on my container," Short said.

Although there were many successful landings, there were also those that didn't survive.

"It took half an hour to unwrap my egg to find out it was broken" Marnie Clark said.

The project was sponsored by sixth grade teachers Mrs. Mary Lou Rush and Mrs. Vicki Box. All contestants received a candy prize.

Fifth graders sharpen their band skills

Being able to join band was an exciting experience for many fifth graders.

"I always wanted to play the drums," Taylor Franken said, "It was a lot of fun."

"The clarinet was the best instrument to fit me," Patricia Millsap said.

This was the second year for fifth grade band, and the class was larger than last year. It was made up of thirty members, compared to last year's twenty - five.

"It was a large group," band director Eric Spyres said. "It was also a good group to work with."

Mr. Spyres taught the fifth graders basic fundamentals such as quarter notes and half notes. They mastered their first song, "Mary's Little Lamb," and performed in two concerts.

Other events for the fifth grade included a Thanksgiving dinner. The fifth graders did most of the meal preparation in their classroom, with some items prepared at home. They all contributed 50 cents to pay for the ham.

The menu consisted of ham, baked potatoes, corn, green beans, deviled eggs, salad, hot rolls, fruit punch, and special desserts.

Committees of students were responsible for sending invitations and decorating the classroom.

"It was really fun," Carrie Gray said. "Everyone are together and we had a nice time."

"I'm glad Mom got to eat the food she had fixed for us," Scott Hall said.

The dinner was a class project, following a unit on nutrition. Parents and administrators were invited guests.

Flutophones big hit with fourth grade

Jumping on the "bandwagon" seemed to be the popular thing to do for fourth graders.

In music class, the fourth graders learned to play flutophones. While they are much like a clarinet or saxophone, flutophones are made completely out of plastic. Flutophones are played by blowing air through a mouthpiece, producing a sound similar to the flute.

Although the school provided one for every child, about 30 students ordered their own to practice with at home. For three dollars they received a flutophone, along with a songbook.

The instruments were popular with the students.

"I wanted one the first time I saw one," Candice Dierking said," because it looked like lots of fun."

"It is the first thing I do when I get home from school," Greg Henry said.

He, like most of the kids, enjoyed playing the flutophone because they learned things that will help them later with "real" band.

Mrs. Debbie Dale began early this year working on reaching the kids the music staff and notes. They also worked on time signatures and reading music.

She hopes this project will build enthusiasm and excitement for fifth and sixth arade band.

"After I played my brother Mart's, I wanted one," Becky Duncan said, "When I get big I want to play flute in the band."

"I like the sound of it," Stephanie Kelly said, "and I think it is fun to play."

Third graders learn about famous citizens hat do a pro baseball player and a nationally acclaimed writer have in common?

Both famous people are part of Mansfield's history.

Laura Ingalls Wilder, world famous author, and Carl Mays, submarine pitcher notorious for accidentally causing the only professional baseball fatality, were only two of the people the third grade studied this year while learning about Mansfield's history.

"I didn't know Laura lived in Mansfield," Chuck Campbell said. "I had fun learning about her.'

"I didn't know that a professional baseball player had lived in Mansfield," Laura Shannon said.

Third graders also learned about businesses in the Mansfield community. They talked about who founded the town, and why it grew.

Besides learning about Mansfield's history, social studies was a new subject for the third grade. A state book and a President's book were part of the curriculum.

"It was fun," Tommy Clouse said. "It was stuff I didn't really know, but I know now."

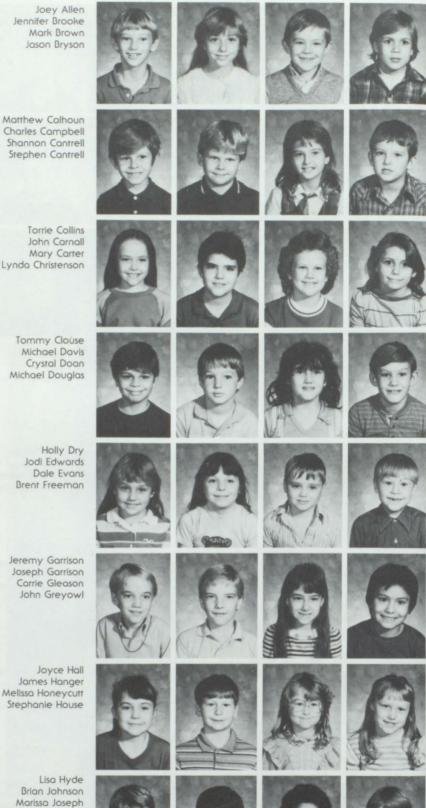

"I liked learning about the Presidents the best," Holly Dry said.

Science was another new class to the third grade.

Hornets nests, cotton plants, and mold cultures were the center of atten-

"The kids were really excited and interested in the science class," said Mrs. Twila Collins, third grade teacher.

Second graders finicky when choosing foods

Second graders do many things, but one of the things they don't do is eat certain foods.

Spaghetti seemed to be one of the most disliked foods. Niki Anderson doesn't like the sauce, and one of her classmates doesn't like the way it looks.

"It looks like worms," Sara Moody said.

"I don't like it," Jennifer Moody said, "because it has hamburger it it."

Another hated food for the second graders was spinach, even though they knew that Popeye thinks it is really areat stuff.

"It tastes gross," Hayden Dennis said.

Luke Johnson and Heather Gray agreed that it doesn't taste good.

"I just don't like it," Lonnie Bell said of spinach.

Another green vegetable got thumbs down from second graders.

Nathan Carr and Sean Spyres don't like green beans. Nathan said they taste yucky and Sean said the bean on the inside tasted weird.

Several second graders don't like broccoli. Mark Pearce said he tasted it once, but didn't like it.

"I don't eat it," Dottie Hughes said, "because I'm allergic to it."

David Climer said it just tastes yucky!"

Two other items made the list of food "worsts".

Jennifer Lynnking doesn't like butter beans because they don't have any taste.

Brandon Miller said he doesn't like hot peppers for an obvious reason - they're hot.

First graders plan futures with optimism

Big plans are in the scheme of things for the class of '97.
While most of the boys in the first grade want to be football players and most of the girls want to be ballerinas or nurses, there were a few unusual goals.

Take Angie Bingham for example. "I want to be a grocery store check-out person," she said, "because I like the noise that the typewriter makes."

Jarod Coday plans to take his life in another direction.

"I am going to be a Solid Gold dancer," he said, "because it looks like so much fun to dance to the music and be on television," Regina Roy wants to spend her life taking care of babies.

"I am going to be a boby - sitter," she said, "because I love to take care of babies. They're just like Cabbage Parch Kids."

Erica Grubbs says his destiny is to star in war movies.

"I have to be in war movies," he said, "I watch them all the time and nothing else would be as much fun."

Ralania Fisher has decided to go with a simpler life - style.

"I'm going to be a cowgirl," she said with determination, "because I'll get to ride a pony all day long."

All in all, the Class of '97 should turn out children with optimistic outlooks on life, confident that they can be whatever they want to be.

Kindergarten makes tepees for Indian time

t was pow - wow time for the kindergarten classes when they helped make ceiling - high tepees.

The authentic - looking tepees transformed the classrooms into pretend Indian - lands for several weeks.

Children from each class brought brown grocery bags to help make the tepees. After being decorated with crayons, the sacks were crumpled and sewn into large sheets. The sheets, resembling buckskin, were draped over large sticks to form the tepees.

The kids studied Indian customs, and each day a different child got to spend naptime in the tepee.

"It made me feel like an Indian," Ricky Dugger said, "when I slept in the tepee."

A special day for the kindergarten kids happened when local volunteer fireman Hank Flageolle and John House visited during Fire Prevention Week. They explained fire safety and showed off the fire trucks.

"I learned to roll out of bed and stay close to the floor," Kassie Calhoun said, "when there is a fire."

The siren was a favorite part for most of the kids.

"It was really loud," Allison Arnall said.

"It was neat," Jerry Henry said, "when the alarm went off and the light was flashing."

After the firemen left, the children colored pictures related to fire prevention, and reviewed what they had learned.

YOU'VE GOT GOOD TASTE!

The spirit of inquiry is alive in the journalism class at Mansfield High School. Curious as to how the tastes of the Ozarks compare to national trends, teacher Debbie Arnall and her class conducted their own independent cola taste test. Mansfield students' tastes reflected America's choice - they overwhelmingly chose the cola that gives you a real choice . . . Coca-Cola! We want to congratulate Mrs. Arnall and her students for the investigative journalism - and for their good taste!

Those ever-lovin' minutes now memories

o some it passed quickly. To others it seemed an eternity.

Either way, the past year became a collage of memories for students.

Although at the time we prayed for snow, the long winter days spent at school proved beneficial the first of April when we enjoyed the first week-long spring vacation ever at MHS.

Maroon and white had to make way for the popular acceptance of gold as the color of spirit at MHS. The bright yellowish-gold, a big change from the more somber, traditional colors, could be seen on many sweatsuits, uniforms, and spirit items.

Students were given the opportunity to practice their "disaster drill skills" when a fire broke out in the junior high science room, causing everyone to be evacuated to the gymnasium. In a mock disaster, journalism students helped Mercy Hospital by posing as victims of a nursing home explosion.

Things weren't always serious though. We joined the nation and put the colas to the test. New Coke? Classic Coke? Pepsi? That was the question.

The taste test caused a stir not only on the local scene, but with area bottling company officials who kept an eye on our every move, supplying us with everything from statistics to chilled cola. New Coke came out on top, surpassing Pepsi and the new generation.

Memorable events of the year brought tears to our eyes, smiles to our faces, and in some cases money to our pockets.

Missourians anxiously purchased lottery tickets in hopes of hitting the state's first jackpot.

The I-70 World Series sent a sense of pride and excitement throughout the state as both Missouri baseball teams battled for the championship.

We also shared the grief of the whole country as we watched the space shuttle Challenger take a fiery plunge which ended the lives of the seven on board. Losing a teacher made it all the more sorrowful for anyone connected with school.

Attention was also focused skyward as school children and adults alike watched for Halley's Comet. (continued)

Continuing a freshmen tradition, Kelly Eidson takes an unwilling shower, complete with clothes.

When they hear they are the Junior Olympics winners, the senior team goes wild.

Louin Le every te minute virolit

Here at home, girls athletics took a big step forward at both the high school and junior high levels. We were no stranger to the state competition as we enthusiastically supported the first female state cross country runner from MHS, while the Sweethearts took to the road and performed at Hammons Center for the State 2A Basketball Tournament.

It was evident that academics took a back seat to nothing as students received medals and awards for accomplishments in several fields of study.

New beginnings enabled us to grow.

We were exposed to the French language, enjoyed the jazz of the Bandroom Rats, and watched the Future Business Leaders of America organization take off on the right foot.

For seniors, it was a time to look back. It was a time to be together.

Doughnuts at the Mimosa after group pictures, meetings to decide on announcements and caps and gown, and the feeling of graduation. These are all things locked in their hearts.

MHS held special memories for all who wished to take them. Just ask someone who was there and they will probably say "I loved every minute of it."

The next time you wonder how things were, just take a look through these pages. You'll see that we were lovin' every minute of it!
