hrill of victory, agony of defeat make for excitement xcitement. Drama. Action. Chills. Thrills. Basketball has it all.

And in a small town like Mansfield, in the winter, the gymnasium is the social center for the whole community.

For boys' and girls' games alike, hundreds of students and adults stop what they are doing to head for the school if it's a game night.

"When you live in a small town, basketball is a big deal, especially when the team is winning," said senior cheerleader Heather Fairbairn. "When we start winning, it really gets people in the community involved in school spirit."

Team members enjoy the camaraderie that develops among the players as the season goes by.

Working together and playing together toward a common goal becomes almost as important as winning.

"I love playing basketball," sophomore Trish Perry said, "because a bunch of people come together and dedicate all of their time and energy to becoming a team and winning."

Having intense rivalries with not just one team but several also helps to make MHS basketball one of the most exciting shows around. Names like Hartville, Ava, Gainesville, or Licking are assurances that there will be a huge turnout at the game.

"Basketball is fun because there's always a big crowd," senior Jon Freeman said. "We have so many rivals, which makes even more people come to the games. It's exciting to play in that kind of atmosphere."

ACHY BREAKY DANCING

Country craze gives Barnwarming a new look for fall ore boots than Nikes, more Wranglers than Guess, more Stetsons than ball caps. Barnwarming let the cowboy in everyone take over for at least one night.

With the rise in popularity of country music, the country craze was evident at FFA and FHA's annual event.

"I liked how people wore western style clothes because it made Barnwarming seem more like it should be," sophomore Stephanie House said.

While country clothes made a big hit, country dances such as the "Achy Breaky", "Cowgirl Shuffle", and "Tush Push" were also big hits at Barnwarming.

"I enjoyed two steppin', wearing boots, and the country atmosphere," sophomore Joe Allen said. "Getting to try those dances was something different. They're harder than they look, but fun once you know the right moves."

Royalty winners were seniors Jeremy Jones and Amy Compton, chosen by the penny-a-vote method.

Attendants were juniors Randall Roy and Jennifer Shropshire, sophomores Allen and Emily Matlock, and freshmen Jeff Hanger and DeeJay Lansdown.

The combination of country clothes, country dancing, and country attitudes made Barnwarming a highlight of the fall for many students.

"Barnwarming was definitely better than last year," senior Robert Gower said. "It seemed that the atmosphere was friendlier, and everyone was a goat roper that night."

It's boots and chaps and cowboy hats for Jeremy Jones and his date, Robyn Gibson, who are doing a country dance called the "Wooden Nickel." Soon others were crowding around to try and learn the dance steps.

Taking a break from the dance, Kendall Keith leaves the multipurpose room through a doorway covered with crepe paper streamers.

Torrie Colllins and John Greyowl take time out for a slow dance at Barnwarming. In a change from the past, country music was played almost as much as rock, which was just fine with most of the students in attendance.

"Actually, so much country stuff was cool. At first I didn't think I would like it, but I really had fun watching everyone do all the country line dances they had learned."

CROWNING GLORY Lions defeat Cabool to make Homecoming complete

erves finally calmed, senior Amy Compton was crowned queen and the Lions defeated Cabool to make Homecoming 1993 a memorable evening.

"I was very nervous," Compton said. "It seemed like it took forever for Jared (Jones) to call out a name. At that point I really didn't care whose name it was, I just wanted it to be over with."

Senior attendants were Carrie Gray, escorted by senior Kendall Keith; Becky Bryson, escorted by senior Ryan Miller; and Shawnya Matney, escorted by senior Brad Hanger.

Compton was crowned by 1992 Homecoming Queen, Missy Carter, escorted by senior Jon Freeman. Princesses were freshman Jenny Blaine, escorted by junior Randall Roy; sophomore Erin Calhoun, escorted by junior Adam Brooke; and junior Shawn Williams, escorted by senior Scott Smith.

Because it was Homecoming, some basketball players said they weren't completely focused at the beginning of the game.

"Having the commotion of Homecoming, we weren't really ready to play," Freeman said. "So we came out the whole first half just dead."

Though they didn't get off to a good start, MHS pulled away from Cabool, winning 87-56.

After the game, a dance was held, and a big screen television was part of the entertainment.

"The videos were really awesome on the big screen," sophomore Mack Murray said. "If you got tired, you could just sit and rest awhile and watch videos."

Homecoming Queen candidate Carrie Gray, wearing a dress of black velvet detailed with bright colors, is escorted to the ceremonies by senior Kendall Keith, who has been her boyfriend since eighth grade.

"I was so nervous that evening, not only because of the Homecoming part of it, but also because I was wearing heels and I was afraid of falling in front of everybody."

Carrie Gray

"Walking in during the Homecoming ceremony was a nervous time. I really wanted Carrie to win, and I was worried about what to do if she did or didn't win."

Wava Engle, a senior, also enjoyed watching all of the kids play the games, and working at FBLA's goldfish booth.

All of the little kids made it fun for me by just being able to watch their faces light up when I gave them a goldfish," she said.

Although some high school students might think they are too old for the carnival, for others, it's still fun.

"Lots of people were there, and that added to the excitement of the evening," freshman Matt Skyles said. "The more people that came, the more fun we had.'

Nearing the end of the evening, Evan Kinser and Wava Engle point out several of the royalty candidates to kindergartener Kate Probert, daughter of high school science teacher Pam Probert.

"There were so many people in front of us that Kate couldn't see the crowning of the kings and queens. I ended up putting her on my shoulders so she could watch what was going on."

A STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN

Prom means slides, dances, mad dashes to the bus es, there are two paths you can go by, but in the long run there's still time to change the road you're on. These words from Prom's theme song "Stairway to Heaven" still linger.

"The decorations (a lighted stairway) added a sophisticated look to Prom," senior Yvonna Climer said. "The room was dimly lit and had a dreamy look."

Prom is a formal event, but the events did not get dull.

"I liked the fact that the speeches and the slide show weren't boring," junior Josh Micheli said. "It made the whole night seem to go smoother."

The slide show had pictures of the juniors and seniors when they were younger.

"The slide show lightened up the evening," junior Shawn Williams said. "It was great reliving the childhood memories."

Junior Jack Becker had a rather memorable Prom.

"I had decorated for Prom all day and got a late start," he said. "I left Springfield late so I set the cruise control and had to get dressed in the car. When I finally got to Melanie's (McGaw) house I could see the bus pulling out of the parking lot. We chased the bus to the exit ramp and parked my car on the side of the road. It was not a good experience."

Seniors realized Prom was one of their last flings.

"Prom was a lot of fun," senior Evan Kinser said. "Since it was our last dance, we all danced with who ever we wanted and how ever we wanted."

Stacey Arnall and date Joe Allen dance the night away, while others use this dance to rest up.

Seniors Kendall Keith and Carrie Gray tenderly share their last dance at Prom.

With Prom dancing frenzy at its peak, Jeremiah Johnson does a jazzy dance number with Melissa Smith's shoes held high above his head while she unsuccessfully tries to get them back from him.

"When Melissa took her shoes off, I thought I would have a little fun. I took her shoes, after she took them off, and then held them up in the air, out of her reach."

Jeremiah Johnson

"Jeremiah stole my shoes and he wouldn't give them back. He waited until he made sure that he was in several pictures before he would give them back to me."

MURDEROUS INTENTIONS Mystery dinner theater highlight of trip for many seniors urder and mystery was so much fun that it was almost criminal during the annual senior trip to St. Louis.

Sight-seeing, a Cardinals ballgame, and a trip to Six Flags couldn't top Rick's Cafe Americain, a murder mystery dinner theater.

Six suspects were picked from the audience.

'At the beginning I was kind of reluctant because the things people said were strange," Wava Engle said, "After a while though it started to get fun because our peope started to get into it, but the names were definitely what made it great.'

Some of the names included Jared Jones, Colonel Klink; Ryan Miller, Thurston Furlov, and Evan Kinser, Jack Cass.

Kinser agreed that the play grew on them.

'At first it was strange because no one knew what was going on," he said, "but as time went on we learned what we were supposed to be doing and we started to have fun.'

For senior sponsor Robyn Pulscher, being a suspect along with Jones was fun.

"Jared (Jones) definitely spiced up the theater," she said. "We suspects had to re-enact the murder and had to prove our innocence through clues and proof that they gave us. It was the best because Jared would have to enact something and he would ad lib so the rest of the audience would ad lib along with him and the total effect was hilarious.

Girls' basketball coach Freddie Doherty's fame as a banquet speaker has spread almost as rapidly as the wild stories he tells about his players before he announces their individual awards.

The stories often involve the love life (real or imagined) of the girls, which he tends to embellish for effect.

The three years of stories about senior Stacey Arnall have always involved past boyfriends, which Doherty pointed out have all been basketball centers.

"I laugh so hard every year that I cry," Arnall said. "You never know what he is going to say, but you know that the crowd is going to roar, and that you are going to turn red standing there in front of two or three hundred people."

Junior Sunny Watterson has also endured three years of Doherty's joking stories at the athletic banquet.

GRADUATION DAY AT LAST

Class of '93 finds graduation both happy, sad event

raduation activities provided a time of joy, and sorrow, for the Class of '93.

"Graduation was sad because honestly, we'll probably never see half of these people again," Amy Compton said, "but it's also one of the happiest days in my life, because now it's time to get on with my life."

Graduation ceremonies for the 54 seniors were held Sunday, May 9, with Baccalaureate services by the Ministerial Alliance.

Rev. Ronnie Roy delivered the Baccalaureate address, with Rev. Stan Welch emceeing the event. The invocation was given by Jon Freeman, and the benediction by Evan Kinser.

Commencement began with a welcome by Jared Jones.

Valedictorian Carrie Gray and Salutatorian Ryan Miller both delivered speeches.

Other honor grauates were Stacey Arnall, Clint Berry, Matt Brown, Becky Bryson, Compton, Wava Engle, Freeman, Scott Hall, Melissa Holt, Jones, Kinser, Vicky Noble, and Tawna Watterson.

Scholarships were presented by Principal Frank Rowles, and Superintendent Robert Perry presented the class.

Two songs, "Don't Say Goodbye" and "Stand By Me," were performed by the senior chorus.

Class officers were Jared Jones, president; Ryan Miller, vice president; Amy Compton, secretary; Bryan Cannon, treasurer; Evan Kinser, student council representative.

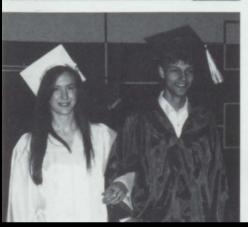

A large proportion of the members of the Class of '93 join together to sing "Don't Say Goodbye" at the graduation ceremony. Some of the boys in the second row got carried away by the emotion of the moment and used Bic lighters to add a touch of drama to the song, to the amusement of the audience.

Stacy Frantz is escorted to graduation ceremonies by classmate Kevin Jones. Both Frantz and Jones had attended Mansfield schools since kindergarten.

Two members of the Class of '93, Pat Williams and Shelly Adams, who have dated each other for several years, are proud to be able to walk together during the processional for the Commencement ceremony.

"It was a very exciting moment, getting to walk in at graduation with someone you are planning to marry in a couple of years. That made our graduation really neat for me and Pat."

Shelly Adams

"Graduation was already a happy time, but getting to walk in with Shelly was great, because we had been together for so much of high school."

Pat Williams Salutatorian Ryan Miller livens up graduation with his rhyming speech about the teachers he has had over the years.

e Our Guest was the theme for kindergarten graduation, held May 20, as 65 students moved on to the next phase of their elementary education.

The welcome was presented by Craig Campbell and Virginia Sherman. A variety of special entertainment such as "Be Our Guest," "Supercalifragelistic Expealidocious," "Mickey Mouse March," and "Heigh Ho," were sung, with solos by Michael Fuge, Mike Moody, Justin Hutson, Tim Stuart, Michaela Dodson, and DeOndra Carnall.

Ashley Paxton, Nikki Jones, Greg Short, Tristan Dennis, Tom Brazeal, and Tiffany Young had special parts.

Principal Jean Coday presented diplomas to the kindergarten graduates.

Eighth grade graduation ceremonies were memorable but scary for most eighth graders.

"I'm nervous about high school," Christa Choate said. "It will be fun but with some of the stories I have heard I'm scared."

The welcome was by Jeffrey Brooke. Class president Eric Grubbs presented a speech.

The eighth grade chorus sang "Dare to Dream." Aimee Williams and Stephanie Day sang "One Moment in Time" and Michael Spyres sang a "Place in this World."

Principal Jerry Armstrong announced the class and Superintendent Robert Perry presented diplomas.

Michael Baty and Regina Roy take part in the processional for eighth grade graduation ceremonies. The class of 54 students graduated Tuesday evening, May 18, in the high school gymnasium.

"I was nervous because there were so many cameras and flashes going off all around. It was a really nervous time, but when it was all over, I was really glad that our graduation went so well."

Regina Roy

BEAUTY AND THE BEST

Annual Miss Mansfield pageant has many winners

unny Watterson, a junior, was chosen from a field of 15 contestants to reign as Miss Mansfield for a year.

Winners in the other divisions were Junior Miss Mansfield Amanda Stacy, an eighth grader; Young Miss Mansfield Amber Davis, a sixth grader; and Little Miss Mansfield Whitney Hannaford, a second grader.

Out-of-town judges looked for smiles, poise, posture, an attractive appearance, and a pleasant attitude.

There were 22 Little Miss

Mansfield contestants, 24 entries in Young Miss Mansfield, and 17 contestants in Junior Miss Mansfield. Each of the four divisions was composed of three grades. Little Miss Mansfield was open to grades one, two, and three; Young Miss Mansfield to grades four, five, and six; Junior Miss Mansfield to grades seven, eight, and nine; and Miss Mansfield to grades ten, eleven, and twelve.

Future Homemakers of America sponsors the pageant each year.

Datamatch fun for lovelorn, lovebirds

By Carrie Gray

Love at first sight. How romantic. Love by computer.

How modern.

FBLA sponsored Datamatch as a fund raiser. Questionnaires were filled out to be matched with other students, based on the compatability of answers to 30 questions. Each person was matched with 10 people of the opposite sex, and could find out the results for $1.

"It was easy to get everyone involved," senior Wava Engle said. "Regardless of being single or dating, everyone wanted to see who they were matched with."

Many found that their friends were also their top matches.

"Most of my matches were people that I hang around with," sophomore Chuck Campbell said. "They were the girls that I felt comfortable with."

Senior Amy Compton found herself matched with some boys that she had ment, were one of the main previously dated.

Some of them were surprising," she said. "But others were ones that I knew was compatible with. because I had either dated them, or been friends with them already.

Another student found that he was more compatible with girls than he expected.

Most people on my list surprised me, because I was already their friend, and had never really imagined anything further," senior Evan Kinser said. "But a lot of girls came to me later and told me that I was on their list, so that was cool.'

Another student also liked his choices.

The girls that I was matched with were cool, so I was happy with the survey results," sophomore Michael Douglas said.

The questions on the survey, ranging from music and smoking preferences to the belief in capital punishaspects of Datamatch.

The questions were general enough to realize that you had something in common with others." Engle said. "Besides, everybody was nosy and wanted to know how everyone else answered the questions.

Compton said that the questions were good enough to find common interests

"I liked the questions. because honestly that's what you would think about before you dated someone," she said. "They were deep, and things that you would need to know before you got into a serious relationship.

Overall, most students found Datamatch fun.

"I probably wouldn't take my list seriously and chase my matches around or anything," freshman Eva Farmer said. "But it was fun to find out who I was compatible with, and if I later wind up dating someone who was on my list, that's cool.'

Winds that reached 165 mph, $20 billion in damage, and 250,000 people homeless.

Those incredible numbers added up to Hurricane Andrew, the worst natural disaster in U.S. history.

Andrew ripped through Homestead, Florida early on Aug. 30, leaving in its wake every home and business destroyed or heavily damaged.

Even though Mansfield is widely separated from Florida in distance, the tragedy was still felt here by connections with relatives and friends.

Some damage was reported in nearby Miami, where Edward A. Tognoni, president of local shoe factory Tobin-Hamilton, Inc., was staying with a friend.

'About five a.m. Monday the storm was at its height and the winds went from a gradual 35 to a maximum 165 mph," Tognoni said.

Mansfield residents Roy and Sue Clouse, parents of sophomore Julie Clouse, were staying with their daughter Jan in Hobe Sound, Florida when Hurricane Andrew hit.

The police came around and told everyone to evacuate, and helicopters flew over homes telling them to evacuate," Sue Clouse said.

Damage was evident in south Florida, but hardest hit was the Homestead and Miami area.

Trees, cars, and powerlines were crushed,' Tognoni said. "Highways were not driveable for several days and there was no power for nine days.

Many Florida residents took preventative measures such as sandbagging and boarding up windows with plywood.

"Some of my sister's family and people who work for them spent the Sunday before the storm on Jupiter Island putting up storm shutters, and nailing plywood over windows," Julie Clouse

Many people fled north to avoid the wrath of Andrew.

They packed up and took valuables, food, water, and went north," Sue Clouse said. "There weren't any motel rooms left in the whole state. People stopped in rest areas and slept in cars as there was bumper to bumper traffic.

As the storm ripped through south Florida and Louisiana, casualties and damage reports piled up. The total number of fatalities came to 44, while 700,000 damage claims on homes and cars reached a staggering $7.3 billion.

Across the nation, people were stunned at the images broadcast from Florida.

"I really couldn't believe it was that bad," senior Jamin Corder said. "I really felt sorry for the people and the kids especially.

The devastation was bad enough, but knowing friends and relatives in Florida made things seem unbearable.

'I was in basic training at Fort Leonard Wood when the storm hit," senior James Axsom said. "Guys in my platoon lived where the hurricane hit, and were extremely upset because they couldn't find out if their homes and families were O.K.

Donations from local businesses and churches tried to help put Florida back on its feet. The biggest local project was initiated by Tognoni.

"Tobin-Hamilton donated 7,000 pairs of shoes worth $75,000 dollars that were distributed by the Hurricane Relief Fund," he said.

A singing program sponsored by local churches succeeded in collecting $700 that was donated to the Red Cross.

ARNALL: Academic All-Star

Stacey Arnall was honored with a plaque by the Springfield News-Leader as one of a 20-member Academic All-Star Team from southwest Missouri.

For the fifth year, the News-Leader honored the top high school seniors and their parents at a banquet to name the 1993 All-Stars.

Mel Carnahan was featured speaker at the banquet, held at the University Plaza Hotel in late May.

Ninety-three schools each nominated one senior, based on grades, ACT test scores, awards, and school and community leadership. The newspaper chose 75 seniors as finalists, then chose the 20 Academic All-Stars from that group.

Although MHS has had a finalist each of the previous years, Arnall was the first senior from Mansfield to make the Academic All-Star Team.

DOUBLETAKE

Three sets of twins in high school spells double fun for everyone involved.

By Carrie Gray

Eyes bothering you? Seeing double?

Before you make an appointment to be fitted for contacts, check out the fact that there are three sets of twins at MHS.

Sophomores Stephanie and Erin Calhoun and Joe and Jerry Garrison are fraternal twins, while freshmen Stephanie and Melanie Blankenship are identical twins.

"I love it when people try to figure out which of us is which," Stephanie Blankenship said, "although at times it gets old when nobody gets it right."

There are other trials of being a twin.

"Most of the time, I don't like being a twin," Jerry said, "because Joe's always around when I do something wrong, and then he can go tell on me."

Even though they are twins, the Calhouns are two very different people.

"Stephanie is more outgoing and more quick tempered than I am," Erin said. "I am more easygoing and more serious about things like homework."

The Garrison twins think that they are also varied when it comes to attitude.

"Jerry has got a whole different personality than I do," Joe said. "We are two totally different people who were born at the same time, so it really isn't that bad."

For the Blankenship twins, being identical can be fun, and even exciting.

"In middle school, we tried to friend."

▼ BEING A twin makes life fun, and sometimes frantic, for back, Erin and Stephanie Calhoun, Joe and Jerry Garrison; front, Melanie and Stephanie Blankenship.

trick the teachers by going to the wrong class," Stephanie said, "but they found out about it before we could pull it off."

For most people, being around identical twins can be confusing.

"At a basketball game in middle school, I got fouled but the referee got us mixed up," Melanie said. "He made Stephanie shoot my free throws and there was nothing we could do about it."

The Calhoun twins have the whole situation figured out.

"Erin's not just my twin sister," Stephanie said, "she's my best friend"

CONCESSION STAND BLUES

For seniors, the year-long money-making project is a necessary evil

Running the concession stand in the gym is the senior's only moneymaking project, and although it rakes in the dough, it's often a big headache.

"It was fun to work at," senior Angela Lansdown said, "but it was difficult to encourage people to work.

Seniors had to work in the stand nine times to be eligible to go on the senior trip. Some of them left their working turns until the end of the year, then tried to cram them all in. And the stand itself has a few problems that seniors had to deal with.

"It was very hectic," senior Patricia Millsap said. "The pop machine didn't work half the time, but the customers were really nice about it."

MHS musician performs at new center

Seventy-six trombones filled the atmosphere in Springfield, with the help of an MHS sophomore.

James Hanger participated in the "Bruin Pride Band Spectacular" held at the new Juanita K. Hammons Performing Arts Center on the SMSU campus.'

Hanger, along with 75 other musicians from across Missouri, was chosen for his talent as trombonist. The band, made up entirely of trombonists, played "Seventy-six Trombones" from "Music Man."

'I received my sheet music a couple of days in advance," he said. "Then after practicing it several times I went to the performing arts center where the entire band practiced together."

Tension mixed with excitement helped make the day memorable.

"I was really nervous, because once you see a huge auditorium packed with people it makes you really nervous,' Hanger said.

Meeting new people from across Missouri was one of the best parts.

"It was fun because before we played we all got in a line and introduced ourselves to everyone," Hanger said. "I met a lot of new people.'

Just being involved in the excitement was a major accomplishment for Hanger.

"It felt good," he said, "to be able to perform in front of all of those people.'

Small town Ozarks athlete named Olympic's best setter in world

By Stacey Arnall

While the eyes of the world were on Barcelona during the 1992 Summer Olympics, the eyes of many high school athletes were on Lori Endicott, top setter for the USA women's volleyball team.

Seeing an athlete from the Ozarks play in the Olympic Games was an inspiration to the MHS volleyball team.

"Watching someone that was so close to home made me want to get out on the court and play as hard as I could." sophomore Janie Carter said.

Endicott led her team to the bronze medal in the largest games in Olympic history, with nearly 12,000 athletes from 172 countries. She played high school volleyball at Willard, and was named outstanding setter of the Olympic Games.

"It's inspiring that someone from the Ozarks is known as the best setter in the world," junior Sunny Watterson said.

Barcelona was filled with Olympic spirit, Endicott said.

There was no doubt the Olympics were in the air," she said. "Barcelona was crowded: there were lots of people everywhere. You could tell that the whole city was excited about the Games being there."

Sophomore Missy Honeycutt admires Endicott for what she has achieved.

"I can imagine how much hard work and dedication it must have taken for her to become such an outstanding athlete," Honeycutt said.

Along with outsanding athletic ability, a strong mental attitude is required to be an Olympic athlete, Endicott said.

To be an Olympic athlete, it takes hard work, discipline, a good attitude, lots of athletic

Senior Stacey Arnall could be so fascinating." was chosen by the Congressional Youth Council to represent Missouri as a Congressional Scholar at the National Young Leaders Conference in Washington D.C. Nov. 3-

Having demonstrated academic achievement, leadership and citizenship, Arnall was among 350 high school students at the conference.

The theme was "The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today." Students met with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

"I learned more in a week that I ever thought possible," Arnall said. "I never knew government

Highlights of the program included welcoming remarks in the House of Representatives, and a panel discussion by prominent journalists at the National Press Club. Students also visited foreign embassies and received a policy briefing from government officials.

Culminating conference was the Mock Congress on Gun Control during which scholars assumed the roles of United States Representatives.

While in Washington, Arnall also visited the Smithsonian, the White House, the Pentagon, Washington Monument, Vietnam Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, and Arlington Cemetery.

After being chosen for the honor by a faculty committee, senior Scott Hall attended the "I Dare You" conference, held during the summer in Michigan.

It was billed as a stressfree environment, focused on improving the inner self.

"Nobody really hurried you," Hall said. "They taught you how to focus on what makes you happy.

Missionary group visits Jamaica

While many people in the U.S. were bundled in layers of clothing trying to keep warm, some members of the Mansfield Full Gospel Church were sharing the warmth of the Jamaican sun.

Sophomores Mike Scott and Michael Douglas, eighth graders Michael Baty and Liz Roth, and several adults participated in a missionary program.

The group left Nov. 24 for Montego

Bay, Jamaica on an eight-day trip to help the natives of that country.

"On the day we arrived, we went to an orphanage to clean up and paint," Scott said. "It was nasty."

The group also found time to get away and have some fun in Jamaica.

'At the orphanage when everyone was inside painting, Mike Scott, Michael Baty, and I went outside and taught some Jamaican kids games we play in America," Douglas said. "It was weird. They called soccer football."

The second day of the trip, the group painted rooms in the orphanage.

Stuff was written on the walls, and there was human feces smeared on the walls," Douglas said. "The whole place smelled like urine."

Although this isn't the Jamaica most people envision, it is reality.

"It was really sad because there were kids living there anywhere from five to 17 years old," Scott said. "Most of them were there because they got in trouble for selling drugs to support their families, because most all the natives are really

The group toured Dunn's River Falls, a 600-feet high waterfall.

"Dunn's Fiver Falls was really cool." Scott said. "We walked up the side of it for about three fourths of a mile. It took us over 45 minutes just to go up.'

Red Ribbon Week sends message

Silently, the Grim Reaper steps into your classroom, removes your best friend from the seat next to you, takes him outside, and "kills" him.

The Grim Reaper went hand in hand with White-Out Day during Red Ribbon Week, a week set aside by ESP (Education Supports Prevention) for drug and alcohol awareness.

ESP president Jeremy Jones and vice president Scott Smith dressed up as Grim Reapers and "killed" students by painting their faces with white make-up. Each white face represented a teenage death caused by drunk driving.

Every six minutes, students were whited out. Afterwards, they weren't allowed to talk.

Being whited-out increased the awareness in most students.

"Seeing all your friends whited-out," junior Jesse Evans said, "it made you realize what a problem it is."

Adding the Grim Reapers had a somber effect on the students.

"I had no idea what was going on," junior Bobbi Beck said. "He just grabbed my arm and pointed to the door. It made it seem so real."

Spyres hopes that Red Ribbon Week made a lasting impression on the student body.

"I like to think that some kids will keep that red ribbon with them as a reminder," he said. "If that's all it takes, then we're that much ahead."

Shawn Williams waits for the Grim Reaper to finish whiting out her face to represent a teen death from an alcohol-related accident.

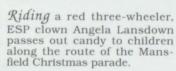

Hi-Step members Randall Roy, Chuck Campbell, and Melanie McGaw listen while first grader Alex Newton tells them about the picture he drew during their presentation in his classroom. Hi-Step is an ESP project that puts high ESP project that puts high school students in elementary classes to build self-esteem.

Selling heart-shaped candy is an ESP project for Jennifer Shropshire, Jeremy Jones, Kendall Keith, Sunny Watterson, and Shawn Williams.

Michael Douglas nervously questions Grim Reaper Jeremy Jones as he walks down the hall to have his face painted white on White-Out Day, part of ESP's Red Ribbon Week. The week was designed to make students more aware of drug and alcohol-related problems.

Before Ryan Miller, right, films a commercial for The Closet, Jared Jones tapes packs of gum inside Jack Becker's coat.

Distributing candy canes for an FBLA Christmas fundraiser has Melissa Holt and Stephanie Joseph checking the names on their list. Different colored ribbon on the candy canes sent a message from "Merry Christmas" to "I love you."

Instead of accounting, it's painting for FBLA members Ryan Miller and Jack Becker as they help to prepare for the grand opening of the school store by transforming a storage closet into a business area.

Stephanie House, Stephanie Blankenship, and Jennifer Jones keep Patricia Millsap and Scott Hall busy on opening day of The Closet.

Eva Farmer is surrounded by her DataMatch picks Scott Smith, John Matney, Steve Wilson, Mack Murray, Michael Davis, and Jamin Corder.

Enterprising FBLA opens The Closet

If there was a new idea around MHS, chances were pretty high that FBLA was behind it.

From remodeling a storage closet into a school store dubbed The Closet, to offering a computer "love search" called Data-Match, the future business leaders group kept busy.

Getting The Closet ready for its grand opening required lots of planning, painting and cleaning.

"The week putting it together, we were all a nervous wreck," club president Wava Engle, a senior, said.

The Closet offered school supplies, cards, candy, balloons, and more. FBLA used video commercials to advertise the products.

"Doing commercials lets the kids see people they know on TV," senior Jared Jones said. "This makes them want to go to the store more than if they heard it in the announcements or over the intercom."

Although the store made a profit, that wasn't the main goal.

"Our main objective was the experience that running a store and doing the paperwork will give us for the future," adviser Marsha Appleby said.

The Closet was open before school, and for the last 15 minutes of lunch hour. FBLA members took turns working in the store.

"With everything, the newness is going to wear off," senior Mart Duncan said. "Still, I think The Closet will be around for awhile."

Greenhand initiation sight to see

Oatmeal, bananas, and grapes sounds like a healthy balanced breakfast, but for FFA members, it brings to mind Greenhand initiation and a bucket of mushy slop.

Greenhand intitiation included several "fun" activities, most defined by initiates as "gross."

"They made us stick our hand in a bucket with a toilet lid on top that was full of mush made up of bananas, grapes, oatmeal, and toilet paper," freshman Christie Matney said. "It was really gross."

For the upperclassmen, a big part of initiation was trying to see how stupid the Greenhands would act.

"They made us walk through a room and told us there were sticks and chairs on the floor that we had to walk over, and come to find out there wasn't anything on the floor at all," freshman Charlene Chambless said. "I felt really stupid when they took the blindfold off."

Some parts of initiation even made students nauseous.

"They put grapes in my mouth and told me they were rabbit droppings," freshman Karen Farris said. "I thought I was going to throw up."

Getting messy was one part of the event.

"They made us kiss the FFA manual three times," freshman Melanie Blankenship said, "and on the third time they stuck a whipped cream pie between my mouth and the manual, and I got whipped cream all over me."

Stepping high, Charlene Chamb-less moves over an obstacle she has been told is in front of her during FFA Greenhand initiation.

Blindfolded during Greenhand initiation, Jennifer Top is in for a mushy surprise as soon as Scott Hall gets her hand in the mixture in the bucket.

Video camera in hand, Matt Brown catches the action as greenhand Julie Clouse gets a surprise, with help from Chuck Campbell.

Christy Matney gets a mouth full of shaving creme on her last kiss of the FFA manual, in Greenhand initiation. Helping her are Jacque Lansdown and Chuck Campbell.

Ending up soaking wet is the price Stephanie Calhoun and Emily Matlock have to pay for riding the rapids on the Lost River ride at Silver Dollar City. The girls were there during FHA's annual fall trip.

FHA shows variety at its best

Barrels of laughs and barrels of flowers summed up the year for Future Homemakers of America.

In the fall FHA took its annual trip to Silver Dollar City. A tintype picture showed members dressed in old-time costumes.

"Me and Jennifer (Shropshire) always try to be different when we take the tintype, so we dressed up as gunslingers," junior Sunny Watterson said.

Getting to know upperclassmen was a bonus for freshmen.

"I thought the trip was really fun," freshman Jennifer Jones said, "because I got to get closer to some of the older kids."

Working on community projects also filled the year for FHA, which purchased 20 half-barrel flower planters for the town's business areas. Several clubs and community patrons "adopted" a barrel for a year.

"The barrels brightened up the town and they gave the tourists passing through on their way to the Wilder Home something to look at," senior Carrie Gray said.

For club's annual Miss Mansfield pageant, a fashion show was presented by The Buckle, a Springfield store. Students modeled the lastest fashions for spring and summer.

"The fashion show was really fun," sophomore Shelly Williams said, "because you could be yourself and not compete against anyone, all while modeling the latest fashions."

Clubs host variety of activities

Being strapped down to a board, not able to move a muscle, and eventually being turned completely upside down, is not what most would expect from a head and spinal cord assembly.

For senior Jon Freeman that's what the assembly consisted of, along with a feeling of helplessness.

"It made me realize why they put people on that board, because there is no possible way you can move," he said.

The assembly was put on by St. Johns Sports Medicine Clinic, and sponsored by Student Council.

The assembly dealt with educating students about the dangers of injuring the head and spinal cord.

"They explained to us how a bump on the head or blow to the spinal cord from something as simple as diving could damage or paralyze us for life," sophomore Shelly Williams said.

There was also a demonstration in which junior Steven Wilson had to steer a wheelchair through an obstacle course.

"It made me realize how hard it is to get around in a wheelchair and how a permanent injury would affect a person's life," Wilson said.

Other clubs were also busy. Foreign Language Club members caroled at the local nursing home and cooked a dinner for the school board.

Lady Letterman Club held its second annual lock-in and presented sports awards at a banquet.

While the director of the Midwest Sports Medicine Clinic in Springfield gets a brace ready, Matt Brown holds Jon Freeman's neck steady in a simulation of what would take place with a spinal cord injury. Student Council sponsored the assembly.

Staffers go crazy for contests

If you're going to win, win big.

Winning 71 awards in ten regional, state, and national journalism contests helped shape a strong year.

"The first of the year we worked really hard on the newspaper and yearbook," junior Jennifer Shropshire said, "and it really paid off when we started winning all the awards."

Writing a story that she normally avoided was fun for senior Carrie Gray.

"I had never really written a sports story before, until my Evan Kinser cross country feature, so it was cool to win the awards," she said. "It was like a mini-contest between Stacey (Arnall) and I over who could win the most sports-feature story awards."

The most challenging of the contests was the OPA regional contest held at SMSU. Eighteen schools entered, including all the Springfield schools. Winning the sweepstakes trophy in the mail-in event and second in the write-off was a thrill.

"I really didn't expect to do so well individually against all those big schools," junior Bobbi Beck said, "but I ended up winning second place in my write-off category, and it was great."

For the eleventh consecutive year, the yearbook was named All-Missouri, and the newspaper was All-Missouri for the thirteenth straight year.

Staffers also won the sweepstakes trophy at the CMJEA regional contest.

While people watch in the comfort of their warm coats, the MHS marching band performs "Jingle Bell Rock" during the Mansfield Christmas parade, held on a cold December Saturday afternoon.

Freezing weather chills band

Like postmen, band members live with that old motto "neither rain, nor snow shall keep us from our appointed rounds."

At several parades, band members dealt with frost-biting cold.

"We spent the whole SMSU Home-coming parade freezing to death," junior Justin Long said. "But by that afternoon, we were melting out of our uniforms."

Weather played a major role in the band's performance.

"The parade hadn't even started when my horn froze up because of the spit in it," sophomore Joe Garrison said. "By the end of the parade my fingers were so cold that the joints ached when I moved them."

Desperate situations required desperate measures.

"It was so cold that we were huddled in a corner holding each others' hands," junior Stephanie Joseph said. "We didn't even care whose hands they were, we just wanted their warmth."

Seymour's Christmas parade was in the morning, with a temperature close to 20.

"At Seymour it was so cold I couldn't feel my feet," senior drum major Evan Kinser said. "This caused Mansfield's parade not to feel so cold when we came back and marched in the afternoon."

Freshman Joanie Fulbright felt the chill.

"My hands were cold because I didn't have gloves," she said, "and when we played my clarinet kept squeaking because the reed was cold."

Mark Brown, Dustin Lansdown and David Climer thaw out their instruments before performing in the Mansfield Christmas parade.

Trumpeters Michael Spyres, Sean Spyres, Jared Coday, Joe Garrison and Evan Kinser give the band's fall concert a brassy sound.

Preparing for the Mansfield Christmas parade, drum major Evan Kinser makes sure everything on his maroon, gold, and white hat is perfect before he lines up the band.

Flutists Naomi Strohm, Torrie Collins and Aimee Williams perform at the band's fall concert.

Patiently waiting for her cue, Becky Dennis gets ready to play the final note on her chimes. The chimes used for the fall concert were borrowed from Ava High School's band department.

MHS chorus members, directed by Eric Spyres, reverently sing their last song for the spring concert, "Come to Me, Oh My Love." The choir received a II rating for its efforts at district music contest, held in Willow Springs for the first time.

Becky Dennis performs the solo "Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair" at the spring concert held in the high school gymnasium. Dennis received a I rating with the solo at district music contest, and a II rating at state.

Boys double quartet members Joe McNeil, Sean Spyres, Jon Freeman, Jeremiah Johnson, Michael Spyres, Steve Wilson, Matt Brown, and Brent Heatherly perform. The group got a I rating at the state contest.

Angela Lansdown, Shawn Williams and Jenny Blaine sing "My Heart is Full of Merriment and Joy."

Singers collect tons of ones

For vocal students at Mansfield this was a year of firsts.

Thirteen students (four soloists and two small ensembles) received ones at district contest, and one soloist and both groups went on to receive ones at state.

Receiving ones at state were the mixed double quartet, boys double quartet, and soloist Sean Spyres, a freshman.

The mixed double quartet was freshmen Jenny Blaine, Sean Spyres, Brent Heatherly; junior Shawn Williams; seniors Angela Lansdown, Jon Freeman, Matt Brown; and eighth grader Aimee Williams.

At least one singer was surprised with the state rating.

"I expected to get ones at districts, but I really didn't expect our group to get ones at state, because no one could ever get it together and show up for practices on the same day," Spyres said.

Members of the boys double quartet were seniors Freeman, Brown, Jeremiah Johnson, and Joe McNeil; junior Steve Wilson; freshmen Sean Spyres, Brent Heatherly, and eighth grader Michael Spyres.

"I was pretty suprised when we got ones at state, and proud of us for not letting down Mr. (Eric) Spyres and Harriet (Middleswart) for all the time they put into this," Wilson said.

Soloists Shawn Williams, Brown, and Becky Dennis received two's on their solos at state.

Passes help ballgame attendance

"You can't get something for nothing" is usually true, but don't include Pep Club in that category.

With purchase of a $5 pass, club members got in free at all home ballgames. The idea was a success, said president Jack Becker, a junior.

"We had at least 75 students who received the passes, and that was a lot more than I expected," he said.

Students liked the passes "because they increased attendance and school spirit," sophomore Jennifer Top said.

A small fee for a major bonus was a good deal for many.

"I paid only five bucks for my pass," sophomore Joe Garrison said, "and it was cool because you didn't have to pay to get in and it saved me money."

Senior Scott Smith was involved in the pass planning.

"We tried to make it to where the kids wouldn't have to pay as much," he said. "It was something different for the school."

Increase in attendance at girls' home games was noticed.

"I attended more girls' games because I had the pass and I didn't have to pay the extra dollar," sophomore Stephanie Calhoun said.

Sophomore Emily Matlock said the passes helped overall attendance as well.

"More people came to the home games," she said, "and the passes encouraged the people who usually didn't come to show up more often."

Squad works to overcome inexperience

Things worth having are worth working for.

The junior varsity and varsity cheerleading squads discovered the true meaning behind this old saying.

Because so few girls signed up, try-outs were not held for the second year in a row. This left the two squads of six with seven cheerleaders who lacked any type of experience.

The situation alarmed first year sponsor Kelly Brazeal.

"I didn't realize we had so many people on the squad that had not cheered before," she said.

Varsity captain, senior Heather Fairbairn, didn't see much hope ahead either.

"I was very pessimistic about being on a squad that was so inexperienced," she said.

Summer vacation became full of mid-day practices in the sweltering sun, to prepare the squad for camp competition.

"I had never dreamed that cheer-leading would require so much physical work," junior varsity captain Tara Fetter said. "But I loved cheering at the games, and I think we did a pretty good job of getting the crowd going in our first year."

Both squads attended the National Cheerleading Association Camp held at SMSU in late July, getting superior ratings and spirit awards.

"We spent a lot of hours working hard, Brazeal said, "and came a long way."

Squad marks 20 years of dancing

The year 1993 marked the twentieth anniversary of the MHS Sweethearts pom pon squad.

The group of 15 was formed in 1973, by then physical teacher education Doris Jean (Magness) Grevillius.

At the school's annual Rose Ceremony, a special presentation and reunion was held for the Five members of the original squad, and many other alumni Sweethearts attended the game. A plaque was presented to Grevillius by cur-rent sponsor Kathy Barnett, in honor of the anniversary.

The pom pon routine performed that evening was dedicated to alumni members.

"Our group has come a long way in 20 years," said captain Carrie Gray, a senior. We are smaller in size, but we have grown and improved in lots of areas. Our routines are faster paced, and we've had the chance to perform at other schools. Still, the spirit of the group is the same."

Members of the '93 squad liked the idea of presenting a special ceremony in honor of the anniversary.

"It was neat because it will give our squad a special memory," sophomore Stephanie House said.

"It's exciting that we've lasted this long. she said. "The Sweethearts were formed 20 years ago, and the tradition lives on through us."

block, Stacey Arnall gets high to nail a kill in a Lady Lions victory during the conference tournament.

Somebody out there has to be losing, but it's not MHS. With a cross country team at the state meet, a baseball team that rolled over just about everything in sight, and a volleyball team that won two tourneys and was district runner-up, 1993 was a breeze. Send a girls' basketball team to the district finals for the first time, and you have a cool, confident, winning year. Let someone else sweat!

MERCY

In two tournaments, the volleyball team was a competitor's nightmare, wiping out every single team that came within reach.

Hard to handle, and impossible to defeat.

For tournament opponents, the volleyball squad was a steamroller, flattening everything in sight. Winning first place in the Norwood Tournament and the conference tournament was part of a strong 22-6 season.

"We were more of a tournament team," senior hitter Stacey Arnall said, "If you win a tournament you have more to show for it than just your record."

Going into the Norwood meet undefeated gave the team extra incentive. After easy wins over Bradleyville and Gainesville, the squad came out on fire in the championship game against Plato, taking the first set easily. In the second set, the team saw its only glimmer of competition, but came through with a win.

"We played with the most intensity I'd ever seen us play with at that point in the year," sophomore hitter Trish Perry said.

Living up to their first place seed, MHS also captured the conference tournament championship.

The team defeated Conway and Norwood in pool play, and rolled over Gainesville in the championship game. However, the lop-sided score didn't make the game less intense.

"It was exciting because Gainesville is always a tough competitor," senior hitter Wava Engle said, "but we wanted to beat them so much that it really didn't matter."

Sophomore setter Missy Honeycutt had the same attitude.

"We wouldn't settle," she said, "for anything less than first place."

The team was Summit Conference champion for the fifth year in a row, won first in the Norwood Tourney (outscoring opponents 90-25) and first in the conference tourney (outscoring teams 90-30).

For the fifth year in a row, the team was district runner-up. In the third set of the championship, MHS had leads of 6-0 and 13-7.

The only regular season loss was against Forsyth, when starter Stacey Arnall was out with an ankle injury and starter Melissa Holt was out after dental surgery.

Competing in the 20-team Boatmen's Showdown, MHS played 4A schools for the first time. Several teams had won state championships, and were nationally ranked.

Stacey Arnall, Wava Engle, Sunny Watterson, and Trish Perry were All-Conference; Melissa Holt was honorable mention.

Cross Country

The first two weeks of school, the cross country team tried a new twist and had training sessions in the municipal swimming pool to build stamina.

There were no girls participating in the cross country team.

Evan Kinser was the top MHS runner in every meet of the season, often beating the next Mansfield runner by a margin of a minute or more.

All seven varsity runners made the All-Conference team. They were Evan Kinser, Taylor Hamilton, Scott Hall, Jamin Corder, Matt Brown, John Greyowl, and Tom Moody.

In the district meet, Mansfield finished first with 27 points, enabling the team to make its sixth consecutive trip to the state cross country meet.

Evan Kinser placed first in both the conference and district meets.

Placing in the top ten at the district meet won All-District honors for Evan Kinser, Scott Hall, Taylor Hamilton, and Tom Moody.

At the state meet held in Jefferson City, the team placed tenth.

Individual placings at the state meet of 150 runners were Evan Kinser 23, Taylor Hamilton 79, Scott Hall 80, Jamin Corder 98, Matt Brown 112, John Greyowl 122, and Tom Moody 124.

LORY

Five seniors anchor team that makes its sixth consecutive appearance at the state cross country meet in Jefferson City.

"Third time's the charm" was the wish of five seniors at the state cross country meet, but the title eluded their grasp for the final time.

After three years of rising expectations, the five seniors (Evan Kinser, Taylor Hamilton, Scott Hall, Jamin Corder, and Matt Brown) anchored a tenth place finish. Sophomores John Greyowl and Tom Moody completed the team.

The runners had made two previous trips to state, but being a senior made a difference.

There was a lot of pressure because we knew it was our senior vear and we'd never have chance to go back and try it again." Kinser said.

More concentration went into running at state because it was the last shot for the five.

Before the race, I just stretched a lot, stayed really focused, and mentally prepared," Cor-der said. "We did better this year than in the past because it was our senior year. It made it a lot more fun and made us try a lot harder."

Brown said he tried to control his actions.

'At the start of the race, I was thinking 'stay calm, don't start too fast, don't start too slow, and stay with the rest of the team'," he said.

Although their dream of first place did not come true, tenth place was something to remember.

LEGEND

A place in history belongs to the Lady Lions, who became the first MHS girls' basketball team to play in a district champtionship.

You've come a long way baby.

For the first time in MHS history, the Lady Lions basketball team made it to the championship game of the district tournament.

Although the Lady Lions lost 71-48 to topseeded Thayer, there was disappointment, but few regrets.

"Being thrown into the championship game against a team that has played there eight times in the last 10 years, I feel we did a good job," said junior Sunny Watterson, who led the team against Thayer with 19 points.

To get to the championship game, the Lady Lions had to beat two teams that defeated them earlier in the season, Licking and Gainesville.

"Beating Gainesville and being the first girls' team to play in the championship game of districts was great," said senior Stacey Arnall, who led the team with 18 points against Gainesville. "It's something we can always be remembered for. It was a great way to end my high school career."

Other starters were junior Christie Blaine and sophomores Trish Perry and Missy Honeycutt.

Coach Freddie Doherty was proud of the team's success.

"If someone at the beginning of the season told us we'd finish the year 18-8, be conference champs, and district runner-up, we would have laughed," he said. "We had a great year. Being the first girls' basketball team from MHS to play in the district championship, we have set a new standard for teams to come."

• Playing before one of the largest crowds all year, Missy Honeycutt guards Hartville's Cory Chandler in the last home game of the season, which MHS won 49-36.

- Making a quick steal, Stacey Arnall takes the ball from Seymour to score two of her 17 points in a 67-34 Lady Lions victory over Seymour. Missy Honeycutt and Amy Compton both added 4 points.
- Trish Perry pulls down a rebound in a game with Hartville, which MHS won 49-36. Perry scored 17 points, and Janie Carter, left, added 6. Carter, a sophomore reserve, was instrumental in a win over Conway which gave MHS a shot at the conference title. Carter replaced senior starter Stacey Arnall, who was in California for a week, and scored 16 points, her career high, to lead the team to a 49-42 win.

• Running step for step with a Seymour player, Sunny Watterson looks for a chance to make a steal. Watterson scored 10 points in the 67-34 MHS victory, which was the second meeting of the two teams.

• Playing close defense, Christie Blaine tries to force an Ozark turnover in a 50-38 Lady Lions' victory, in which she scored 6 points. Ozark was a new team on the Mansfield schedule, and was one of nine 3A and 4A teams that matched up with MHS, including Lebanon, Springfield Hillcrest, and Rogersville. Mansfield, a 2A team, claimed wins in six of those nine games.

Girls' Basketball

The team won first place in the Summit Conference, tying Gaines-ville with a 5-1 record.

Third place in the conference tournament and the Lady Lions Invitational went to MHS.

Scoring leaders for the team were Trish Perry with a 14 average, Stacey Arnall 13, Sunny Watterson 11. Perry's high was 31, Arnall and Watterson 22. Arnall finished with 1178 career varsity points.

Stacey Arnall led in rebounds with 6.4 a game. Sunny Watterson led with 55 steals and 74 assists. Christie Blaine shot 65 percent from the free throw line; Trish Perry shot 52 percent from the field.

Sunny Watterson, Stacey Arnall, and Trish Perry were named to the KKOZ Dream Team.

Stacey Arnall was one of five players named to the Lady Lions Invitational All-Tournament team.

All-Conference were Trish Perry, Sunny Watterson first team; Stacey Arnall, honorable mention.

Despite depressing pre-season predictions, the boys' basketball team has a winning season and a tournament championship.

After a disappointing pre-season prediction by area TV sportscaster Ned Reynolds of only 12 wins, the Lions had plenty to be motivated about, and even more to prove.

One way they proved themselves was winning the championship of the Seymour Tournament.

"The Seymour Tournament helped get our confidence up," said senior starter Jon Freeman, "and it showed us we could come out and play hard every game."

In front of a standing room only crowd, the Lions faced the host Tigers in the title game.

"The large crowd gave you confidence and made you feel like you were awesome," said senior starter Jeremy Jones. "It made you want to play even harder when the Seymour crowd started to boo and hiss."

For sophomore starter Chuck Campbell, winning was great, but beating Seymour with their home town crowd there was even better. "The crowd made winning even sweeter," he said. "It was like not only did we beat their team, but we also beat their crowd."

Ending the season, the Lions faced the stateranked Alton Comets, a team that was also seeded first in districts.

"I thought we did a little better than everybody expected, and we > almost pulled off the biggest upset of the year against Alton," senior starter Ryan Miller said. Even though we didn't win, we ended the season well by giving the second ranked team in state a run for their money.'

WEATHER

Starting out with only seven games on the schedule, and losing two of them to rain, softball season was short and sweet.

Saying "rain, rain, go away" didn't work.

Spring rains put a damper on an already abbreviated spring softball schedule.

Softball season was definitely not what the team members expected, with only five of the seven scheduled games actually being played.

"I was really looking forward to softball this season, since it was my senior year," second baseman Amy Compton said. "I was pretty disappointed how it all ended up."

Getting hyped up for a game and then finding out it has been canceled gets old after awhile.

"It's not any fun when all your ballgames get rained out because you lose the excitement of getting to play right then," sophomore Melisa Porter said.

Practices also didn't seem worth the effort when there was so much wet weather.

"I got so sick of practicing a whole week for one game, then that game getting rained out," sophomore shortstop Emily Matlock said. "Then you would just have to turn around and practice another whole week for another game that would most likely be canceled too."

The weather had little support for the girls' spring softball program.

"The inconvenience of Mother Nature put a huge burden on softball," sophomore first baseman Trish Perry said.

Not knowing when they were going to be able to fit in a game, the girls learned to be prepared.

"I learned to carry my uniform in my car," Compton said. "You never knew when you were going to play a game and when you weren't."

Coach Roger Wood talks to team members Areatha Sickels, Missy Honeycutt, Amy Compton, Janie Carter, and Trish Perry before a home game with Seymour starts.

Softball

Only three of the seven conference schools fielded softball teams, down from five the year before. Mansfield won the conference title, beating Conway and Seymour.

The team outscored its conference opponents 91-11.

The schedule originally included seven games, but because of rain and cold weather, was shortened to five games. The rain wouldn't give in, causing some games to be rescheduled seven times before they were actually played. Eventually, games with Strafford and Norwood were simply dropped because of rescheduling difficulties.

Leading batting averages were held by Trish Perry with .684 and Julie Clouse with .667.

Julie Clouse led the team with a .875 on base percentage, followed by Trish Perry with .833.

Pitchers Emily Matlock and Niki Anderson both compiled a 2-0 win record. Amy Compton had a 0-1 record.

Trish Perry led the team in runs scored with 17.

In a game with Seymour, centerfielder Julie Clouse dove and caught a line drive, then flipped it to second for a double play to end the game. Areatha Sickels did the same thing against Conway to lock up the conference title.

All-Conference were Trish Perry, Missy Honeycutt, Janie Carter, Jodi Edwards, Amy Compton, Jacque Lansdown, Areatha Sickels, Julie Clouse, and Emily Matlock.

Kendall Keith and Jeremy Jones were named All-District, All-Ozarks, and first team All-State. Steve Wilson was All-District and second team All-State. Joe Garrison and Matt Skyles were All-District.

Pitcher Kendall Keith was team MVP. He had the fewest strikouts with 5, hit 6 homeruns, and was 8-1 with a 2.42 ERA, striking out 63 in 61 innings.

Centerfielder Jeremy Jones won the best defense award. He had 10 homeruns, 4 triples, 8 doubles, 45 RBI's, and was 10 for 10 in stolen base attempts.

Catcher Steve Wilson had the highest batting average with .478. Other top batting averages were Jeremy Jones with .430, Kendall Keith with .429 and Joe Garrison with .427.

INAL FOUR

For the third time in four years, the baseball team keeps going and going, all the way to the Final Four of the state tournament.

There's always room at the top when it comes to Mansfield and baseball.

For the third time in four years, the Lions made the elite Final Four, but also for the third time, fell short of the 2A State Championship.

After a come from behind win over St. Pius X in the semifinals, the Lions' season ended at the hands of Notre Dame.

In the championship game, freshman lefthander Matt Skyles' allowed only five hits, struck out eight and walked no one. It was four Lion errors that Cape Girardeau Notre Dame took advantage of to score 3 unearned runs and beat the Lions 3-1.

Mansfield's lone run came in the first when senior Jeremy Jones tripled to drive in senior Kendall Keith, who had singled with two out.

However, placing second in the state could have been worse.

"Even though we lost the championship game, it didn't feel as bad as if we were expected to be there," Jones said. "It was thrilling because no one expected us to go that far." Trailing 3-1 in the seventh inning of the semifinals against St. Pius, junior Steve Wilson lined a two-run double to tie it up.

With two outs in the eighth, junior Randall Roy bounced one over the pitcher, allowing Jones to race home from third to score the winning run.

With perhaps less talent than in other years, the Lions proved that sometimes a little teamwork will get you farther than anything.

"I never had a team

we had,"
C o a c h
Doug Jones said.

MOMENTS

Track meets are full of brief moments of competition, and much longer moments of watching and waiting.

Here's a riddle for you.

What lasts for hours, but really only lasts for a few seconds?

The answer to that confusion is your basic track meet.

Average races usually last for about 30 seconds, but average meets often drag on for over three hours. With track athletes only competing in a few events each, that makes for lots of minutes to kill.

Sophomore Chuck Campbell usually competed in the high jump, shot put and discus.

"All of my events are at the first of the meet," he said, "so when I get done there is nothing to do, and I get pretty bored."

Track team members have to come up with creative ways to pass the time.

"We get bored and play Red Rover and leap frog," freshman Jenny Blaine said. "Sometimes we pretend we're opera singers."

Other runners find that all that down time increases tension.

"Lots of times at the meets there is too much time to worry about how I'll do," junior Christie Blaine said.

Sophomore Janie Carter also finds that more time means more stress.

"When you have a lot of time between events," she said, "being patient increases pressure."

Some runners even feel the pressure after the meet is over.

"After all the preparing for races," sophomore Julie Clouse said, "all the energy used to do my best usually makes me sick. I feel awful for a couple of days."

Track

By finishing second in the 300meter hurdles at the district level, Matt Brown, for the second year in a row, qualified for the state meet in Jefferson City.

At the state meet Matt Brown competed in qualifying heats, but did not make it into the final round.

At the district meet, Janie Carter placed third in the shot put and third in the discus.

Janie Carter and Chuck Campbell were the high point individuals for the season.

BIOLOGY I students Dustin Lansdown, Tom Moody, Michael Davis, Serena Walker, Joe Garrison, and Carrie Gleason stare in wonder as science teacher Pam Probert demonstrates the effects of liquid nitrogen on flower petals.

CHEMISTRY lab partners Christie Jones and Sophia Greyowl use tongs, not hands, to open a crusible of copper (II) sulfate compound.

DURING the hectic science projects days, Melisa Porter uses a Sunday afternoon work session to cut out graphs so they can be put on her board in time.

PHYSICS students Evan Kinser, Sophia Greyowl, Scott Smith, Stacey Arnall, Carrie Gray, and Amy Compton use visual aids to learn about the acceleration of a car down an incline plane. They are working in the hallway outside the science classroom.

Science students learn from experimentation

Einstein would be proud. In honor of National Chemistry Week, science teacher Pam Probert went all out showing her students the benefits of experimentation.

'Mrs. Probert showed us how with liquid nitrogen, you can suspend a magnet over a super conductor," senior Sophia Greyowl said. "It just hovered over the conductor and never touched it at all."

Experimenting with liquid nitrogen, Probert had a little fun with her Biology I class.

"When she put her finger in the liquid nitrogen, I went crazy," sophomore Serena Walker said. "When she hit it with a hammer, I still thought it was her real finger. I didn't realize it was fake until she started laughing.

Chemistry students found that hydrochloric acid over zinc has an unusual reaction.

When we mixed it together, you could hear the gas, junior Jack Becker said. "We put it in beakers, lit a match, ignited the gas, and there was a loud bark, like a dog."

Students learned to identify metal compounds by the color they gave to a flame.

Air-brushing captures attention of art students

Air-brush was the buzz word of the year for the art department.

air-brushed.

"First, you stick the stencil on the tee-shirt and spray the paint all over it,' freshman Micheal Bailey said. "Then you take it off and outline it, then iron and wash it.

In addition to air-brushing, students could also go to 'open Monday nights.'

"I thought it was a really good idea to open the art room on Monday nights, senior Jamin Corder said. "It gave us time to work without having to rush, and we could do a better job.

Less rushing and higher quality was also a benefit for sophomore Tara Moody.

"It gave you more time to do a better job on your work," she said. "Also it gave you a chance to get help from Mr. Brav.'

It was a positive change, in Bray's opinion.

"It stimulated the students' interest in art," he said, "and gave them a chance to work on projects they might not have had time for in class.'

Court says state school funding unconstitutional

A court decision concerning Missouri's controversial school funding formula was

"It's probably the in favor of smaller districts.

most significant More than 100 districts, including Mansfield, had petitioned the court to throw out the current method of funding on the grounds that the formula was unconstitutional.

The present method allows money spent per pupil to range from $9751 to $2653. The current amount spent at Mansfield is $2800.

Superintendent of Schools Robert Perry believes that the decision is a major step to solving the funding problem.

"It's probably the most significant ruling concerning school finance in Missouri's history," he said.

High School Principal Frank Rowles believes another court will be involved.

"The case will undoubtedly end up in the Missouri Supreme Court, and I am almost positive that their ruling will be the same," he said.

Rowles believes this will jolt the legislature into action to help smaller districts.

"Obviously, the legislature needs to be prodded into action," he said. "This route seems to be the only way to make them do what they should already have done."

"On the last day of school there was a band party. Matt Moody and Billy Stofer came in and got a chocolate cupcake. They decided to initiate me, so they got me in the corner and rubbed the cupcake in my face." -- Evan Kinser

"Jon Freeman sat behind me in algebra, and he would ask me every single day how my love life was going." - Stacey Arnall

"I had a friend that had moved right after eighth grade graduation. Coach (Roger) Wood called her name during roll call the first day of high school, and when I told him she'd moved, he made me show the rest of the class where she had gone, on a map. I was so upset that I told my mom I wasn't going back to class again." -- Carrie Gray

"I was crazy. I got into a fight with a senior." -- Brian Hodges

"I'll remember breaking my finger during basketball camp, and then not even playing in the season. All that pain for nothing." -- Melissa Holt

"I was always driving my sister's car without my license." -- Bryan Cannon

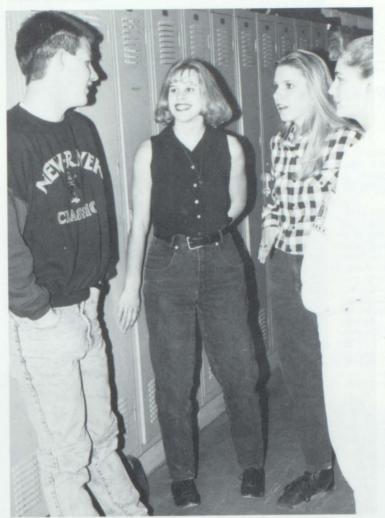

"I went with the FFA to national convention. Those three days were so cool. We skipped most of the lectures and walked in circles in Kansas City because Lane (Adamson) got us lost." -- Becky Bryson

"My brother Jimmy, Marc (Brazeal) and Gary (Greene) stripped me down and locked me outside and I drove off in Jimmy's car." -- Jon Freeman

"My girlfriend kissed me on the cheek, and Mr. (Frank) Rowles saw us. He gave me an eighth hour, and Coach (Doug) Jones started calling me Casanova." -- Ryan Miller

"Marty Henry would chase Stacey (Arnall) and I to hug us after he got out of cross country practice and was all sweaty." -- Amy Compton

History

JUNIOR JOURNEYS

"Homecoming was the same day as my birthday, and we played Gainesville and we blew their doors off. Jeremy (Jones) got his first dunk in a game." --Brad Hanger

"I spent two weeks making four jack-inthe-boxes for Prom. I had glue on my hands and clothes. I could pick things up just by touching them. I spent all that time working on those things and they lasted about an hour into Prom. People kept popping the balloon heads and tearing the arms off." -- Melissa

"I busted out my pants at a business contest in front of 2000 people." -- Brian Hodges

Holt

"Me, Matt Brown and Mr. (Lyle) Whittaker were in his office playing on the computer. Christie (Jones) walked in and we told her that she had to talk into the computer to get it to work. She did, and it was so funny that we still talk about it." -- Heather Fairbairn

"After I had a wreck, I was grounded for six weeks and couldn't drive for a month." -- Clint Berry

"I got to perform with our pom pon squad at Hearnes Center in Columbia during the state basketball tournament. The gym was huge and we were all nervous, but I'll never forget it." --Carrie Gray

"Me, Wava (Engle) and Jeremy (Jones) went swimming at Pontiac, and a kid walked by and thought Wava and I were skinny dipping because we had on bikinis." -- Amy Compton

"I'll never forget the time I walked the whole cross country meet and Evan (Kinser) ran it all, and I beat him." -- Scott Hall

"Me and a bunch of people were at Green Mountain and Taylor (Hamilton) drove my truck across the creek just fine, but when I tried to drive it back across I got it stuck and had to leave it there overnight." -- Matt Coffman

"The thing I'll remember about my junior year is having true friends. They listened to my problems and helped me through some hard times." -- Shawnya Matney

On a cold day in January, Heather Fairbairn positions herself in front of one of the most popular places in the school - a large heating vent - while she talks to Christie Jones.

Using a neutral back for support, Joe McNeil gives fellow senior Chris Farris a playful punch while waiting for classes to resume after lunch.

While James Johnson works at the computer, Shelly Adams explains what happened during her weekend.

Jamin Corder offers a rose to his mother, Carla, during the annual rose ceremony honoring seniors and their parents, held at the last home boys' basketball game of the season. Seniors participated who had been athletes or who had been in sports-related activities during their high school years.

Three seniors, Amy Compton, Wava Engle, and Patricia Millsap, share a tearful moment together after the annual senior rose ceremony is concluded.

A hug is in order for Pattie Olive after son Clint Berry has presented her with a rose at the seniors' rose ceremony.

SENIOR SMILES

"The night after the CTA Carnival we had a dance in the IGA parking lot until about one in the morning. We did it again the next night, and the cops came to see what was going on. We said 'dancing', and he said 'be good, and don't be too loud'." -- Scott Smith

"Jamin Corder took me over to Hartville to get my driver's license and I got it, but on the way back Jamin was driving and we had a wreck. We took a fence out." -- Yvonna Climer

"I went to hug Carrie (Gray) in the bathroom at Prom and my necklace got caught in her lace dress, and Melissa (Holt) had to pull it apart." -- Wava Engle

"The one thing I'll remember is how Scott Smith always picks fights with me and it's great when people actually think we hate each other, when we're just joking around." -- Heather Fairbairn

"One night me and Steve (Garrison) decided to go on a roadtrip. Every time we reached a fork in the road we would flip a coin and head that direction. We ended up going all over the place." -- Becky Bryson

"The most unusual moment was when I met Benjie (Dennis) and all of a sudden my life turned upside down. I got engaged, moved to Mansfield, and got married." -- Becky Dennis

"Trashing the rooms at the state cross country meet." -- Jared Jones

"At the academic awards banquet, Mrs. (Marsha) Appleby announced that she was giving me her perfect attendance award, and it turned out that I wasn't there." -- Daniel Burtchett

"I quit school, but I came back, which was the smartest thing I've ever done." - Shannon Page

"When we played Catholic, their big guy thought he was tough. He looked it, but he wasn't as soon as I sent him to the floor." -- Brad Hanger

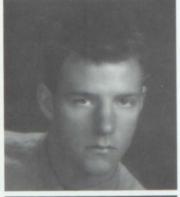

"We actually did science projects, and at our conference fair, I won "Best of Show" and beat Grier Huffman from Hartville." -- Carrie Gray

Tawna, You chose as your favorite scripture Romans 8:37-39, "In all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us..." Now you are ready to go out and conquer your world with that beautiful smile that stole our hearts eighteen years ago. Just remember, always be true to yourself and to the God you serve.

Congratulations. We are so proud of you.

We love Dad Travis Tiffany, and Agree.

Phillip Hull, Robbie Decker, Matt Calhoun, and Sean Spyres work, in varying degrees, on an assignment in math class.

Using her heart-shaped candy for emphasis, Trish Perry talks to someone across the room, while she is waiting for the bell with Ashley Miller, Melisa Porter, and Emily Mat-

Happy to be at Prom. DeeJay Lansdown and Jerry Brazeal sit this dance out at their table.

Emily Matlock and Ashley Miller head back to classes after eating lunch at their grandparents' house.

Enjoying the ESP lock in are Sarah Johns, Marissa Joseph and Jackie Honeycutt. Below right, Jim Wallace gets his FFA Greenhand cut-out for initiation.

QUITE LIKE THIS

You can say unique. Or different. Innovative. Original. Or even unprecedented.

But saying NEVER QUITE LIKE THIS paints the most vivid picture of the 1993 school year.

The switch to Democratic leadership, the country craze, the interest in local tourism, the opening of a school store. This was definitely a year of change at every level.

In late August, the worst natural disaster in U.S. history, Hurricane Andrew, devastated Florida with winds that reached 165 miles per hour, causing $20 billion in damage and leaving 250,000 people homeless. Although Mansfield is widely separated from Florida in distance, the tragedy was still felt through connections with friends and relatives. Local relief donations included $70,000 worth of shoes from Tobin-Hamilton, Inc., and several churches joined together to put Florida back on its feet.

On the T.V. screen, political commercials signaled the upcoming November elections. Following standards set by predecessors, both national and state candidates tried to outdo each other with slander, sarcasm, and "facts."

For 12 years, Republican Presidents ruled the land, but 1993 was a year of change.

In an election complicated by independent candidate H. Ross Perot, Democrat Bill Clinton defeated President George Bush, and the Democratic Party gained control of Congress. Clinton promised changes in the economy, the military, and education. NEVER had there been a government QUITE LIKE THIS.

Mel Carnahan became Missouri's first Democratic governor since 1976. Carnahan also focused on the issue of education, promising to bring about change. And closer to home, the installation of a 911 system gave all Wright County residents the opportunity for quick help in an emergency.

In the Mansfield Mirror, a letter to the editor prompted over a dozen MHS students to attend a city council meeting, a first for most. Students who had put thousands of dollars worth of stereo equipment in their vehicles were afraid the council was going to place a curfew on how late and how loud they could play their stereos in town. Students were afraid cruising would be NEVER QUITE LIKE THIS without their music.

Throughout the year, many school groups focused on projects unlike any they had tried before. Community involvement by students was NEVER QUITE LIKE THIS. FHA members bought 20 half-barrel planters and placed them in the town's business areas, trying to make Mansfield more attractive to tourists visiting the Laura Ingalls Wilder Home.

NHS members began a project to purchase two "Welcome to Mansfield" signs to be placed on the edges of town. The signs, like the barrels, were designed to enhance local tourism.

The country craze that struck the nation also hit Mansfield, causing many local "city slickers" to become "boot scootin' cowboys." People were seen in western shirts, Levi's and Ropers every day. Fashion was NEVER QUITE LIKE

THIS before.

Tennis Club was added to the list of organizations for students, and seventh hour sports and drivers education were dropped because of staff reductions and budget cuts.

ESP held a New Year's Eve lock-in to provide an alternative to going out and getting drunk. Over 50 people attended and played volleyball, watched movies, and welcomed the new year in safely.

Support at ballgames was NEVER QUITE LIKE THIS, athletes found. To encourage students in Pep Club to actually attend ballgames, members were given passes for free admission to all home athletic events. The change in attendance was dramatic.

For the first time ever, the volleyball team participated in the West Plains Boatmen's Showdown Tournament, which was composed of 20 of the best teams from all over Missouri and neighboring states.

Both the boys' and girls' basketball teams had a new look after having fundraisers to help buy new, longer uniforms. The Lions had NEVER looked QUITE LIKE THIS.

Entrepreneurship class changed academics with mock trials. Students served as police, handed out "tickets", held court and learned about the law system hands on.

Datamatch, an FBLA fundraiser, helped Cupid make love connections at MHS. Students filled out a questionnaire and paid a dollar to find out the 10 people they were most compatible with. FBLA also added "The Closet," which sold everything from pencils to cards to helium balloons.

From any viewpoint, from national issues to simple changes in the day to day lives of students, 1993 was a year that shouted NEVER QUITE LIKE THIS.

WHILE WAITING FOR the runners to make a second lap at a cross country meet, Ryan Miller and Jon Freeman try out their intimidation look.

SARAH JOHNS pauses and waves before she goes back into the school for her afternoon classes.
